Navy Releases Warplanes for Sale to Allies

Turns Back 50 Dive Bombers to Help Britain and France Combat Nazi Aerial Superiority: Urgent Appeals for Aid Made.

BULLETIN
WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Roosevelt asked congress today for power to dispose of surplus guns—as well as ammunitions and warplanes—through a legal channel which might release these urgently-needed munitions to the Allies.

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON—The release of 50 navy warplanes—a majority of them dive bombers—for sale to the Allies made the subject of further indirect military aid to France and Britain the No. 1 question mark today on the crowded national defense calendar.

The navy announcement last night that the "surplus" planes were being turned in to their manufacturer came only a few hours after the White House had disclosed urgent appeals from the Allies for all possible speed in the production of military supplies.

This sequence, coupled with a series of other incidents, gave rise to animated speculation as to whether the administration had reached a decision to extend much greater indirect military assistance to the two belligerents.

As attention turned to the White House for possible clarification, President Roosevelt had on his desk for signature the $1,492,542,750 naval appropriation bill providing for regular and emergency equipment from bombs to battlewagons. The senate passed the legislation yesterday.

The "trade in" announcement of the navy planes gave a definite indication that more aircraft would be turned back to the manufacturer and thus—although the announcement did not mention the point—be available for resale to the Allies.

The reason given for the aircraft "trade-in" was that improved replacements for the planes were almost ready.

Late last year the navy waived delivery on 44 Brewster fighters, fully equipped with machine guns, to make them available for sale to Finland, then, battling a Russian invasion.

Besides the release of the navy planes, there were other developments yesterday which some interpreted as foreshadowing an important determination of policy toward Allied equipment needs.

4 Children Hurt, Chief Cautions Parents, Drivers

Injury to four Mansfield youngsters within a 12-hour period yesterday brought a statement from Police Chief Meade K. Bates today in which he urged parents and motorists to exercise greatest possible caution during the coming summer months.

"With 6,000 school children forced into the streets because of lack of supervised playgrounds it is necessary that parents recognize their responsibility and warn their youngsters of the dangers of being in the streets," Bates said.

He added that caution in safeguarding the lives of the young—(Continued on Page 2, Col. 6)

Commencement Speaker Tells Them to Steer Clear of World Mad With War.

By VIRGINIA A. GRANVILLE
"Try to keep the twin candles of wisdom and light burning in this windy world gone mad with war," Dr. C. E. Wildman, president of DePaw university, Greencastle, Ind., advised 302 Senior high school graduates last night at commencement exercises at Stadium field. Dr. Wildman spoke before nearly 2,500 persons, believed to be the largest crowd ever to attend a high school commencement in Mansfield.

STANDARDS IN LIFE EXPLAINED

St. Peter's Speaker Urges Grads to Follow Standards of Christ, World.

By ROBERT FLOHR
There are two standards to follow in life, the standard of Christ and the standard of this world, Rev. John J. Vogel, professor of philosophy at Mary Mansse college, Toledo, told a class of 39 seniors of St. Peter's high school during commencement exercises last night. "In other words," Rev. Vogel said, "there are two crowds of people: one crowd of Christ, and the other crowd that believes in no God and reject Christ."

More than 300 parents, friends and fellow-students witnessed the exercises in St. Peter's church. The program opened with a colorful procession from the high school to the church. Girls in the class were attired in white caps and gowns and the boys in grey caps and gowns.

NEW YORK—The Italian line reported today that all Italian ships on the high seas had been ordered into neutral ports.

Italo Verrando, New York manager of the line, said the order cancelled all sailings and that all Italian ships were safe. He said the order came directly from Rome.

Several weeks ago the Italian line rushed its huge passenger liners Rex, Conte Di Savoia, Roma and others to Italian ports and postponed their sailings.

Asked if this meant war, Verrando said: "I don't know but it looks like it."

NO 'DUMPING'

Treasury Quarantines Foreign Securities for Protection.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The treasury quarantined all foreign securities today to prevent Germany from "dumping" securities that may have been seized in the invaded European countries.

Effective today, the importation of securities from any foreign country was prohibited unless the securities were submitted to a federal reserve bank for examination.

Treasury officials declined to say officially what the purpose of the order was, but made it plain that they were trying to prevent the sale in this country of securities taken away from "rightful owners" in Belgium, Holland, Norway, Denmark and Luxembourg.

Paris Claims 200-Mile Front Holds Against Invasion; London Says Foe Drives Spearhead Over River Near Abbeville.

BULLETIN
LONDON—(INS)—German forces have driven a spearhead across the Bresle river south of Abbeville, authoritative military quarters in London admitted late this afternoon. Otherwise, it was said, the French Weygand line is holding.

BULLETIN
BERLIN—(AP)—Informed German sources expressed belief today that France has "practically vacated" her great Maginot line to throw every available man into the great Aisne-Somme battle to defend Paris and Le Havre.

(By Associated Press)

Cannon-equipped Allied planes wreaked new havoc on German tank columns driving into France in the 3-day-old battle for Paris today as the Nazi high command asserted in a brief communique that the Weygand line was "broken through on the entire front."

Meanwhile, an ominous hint of Italy's imminent entrance into the European conflict came when the Italian line in New York reported that all Italian ships on the high seas have been ordered into neutral ports.

The order cancelled all sailings. The French said that the 200-mile front was being held firmly against the fury of the German onslaught and that French and British planes destroyed 400 tanks.

In a dramatic order of the day to his troops, Generalissimo Maxime Weygand declared:

"The future of France depends on your tenacity. Hold tight to the soil of France!"

His poilus were reported doing just that, fighting fiercely with rifles, bayonets and knives from rock to rock, tree to tree.

Scottish Highlanders supporting their French comrades on the lower Somme battled in their shirt-sleeves in the stifling heat.

"The order is to defend our position without thought of withdrawal. Look only forward," Gen. Weygand commanded.

London military quarters reported the situation along the Somme-Aisne line "is not too bad—in fact it's pretty good."

They added, however, "We are not yet certain there may not be a main attack yet to come."

British and French officers were said to believe that German dive-bomber pilots were "losing their nerve"—not because they lack courage but because "there are certain forms of warfare which no human can stand very long."

Pointing the grim struggle, authorized Nazis in Berlin proclaimed Germany's war aims in blunt terms: "The annihilation of the enemy."

HELP: British Fliers Bomb Nazi Lines as Aid to French

(By Associated Press)
LONDON—Great Britain's airmen, pounding German forces in western France, were reported officially today to have subjected German positions at Abbeville to "45 minutes of almost incessant bombardment" which scored direct hits on strategic roads and bridge in the region of the embattled French city.

The air ministry said three direct hits were obtained on one bridge over the Somme estuary in the raid yesterday. Its report was issued several hours after another official report told of the second German raid in 24 hours on a wide area of England's south and east coast last night and this morning.

In an interview in London, Lord Beaverbrook, minister of aircraft production, revealed that Britain had kept ahead of her plane losses in the great Flanders fight and had put in production the "largest bomber in the world."

He said Britain's aircraft output per week since May 11 has been 62 per cent more planes and 33 per cent more engines.

Arnold Wild as Mansfield Drops 8-4 Verdict to Red Birds

Issues 11 Walks In Loss

Braves Suffer 2nd Setback In 10 Games; Play at Fremont Tonight.

By CHARLES MARTIN

FOSTORIA trimmed our Braves by an 8 to 4 count last night at Fostoria and the defeat sent Mansfield another game behind the pace-setting Findlay Oilers in the Ohio State league race.

Bob Arnold handled the pitching assignment and the youthful right-hander was extremely wild, issuing 11 free tickets to the Red Birds. And Fostoria took full advantage of the walks to topple the Braves.

The Red Birds held a 5 to 4 lead going into the eighth and then led the contest by scoring three times on a pair of walks, a single and a triple. Delfino got the three-bagger with the sacks loaded.

Mansfield treks to Fremont today to engage the Green Sox in a tilt at 8:15 p. m. Steve Radomski will be Manager Dewey Stover's pick to toe the rubber.

Fostoria moved a head up in the first frame and never trailed. When the Braves tallied three times in the third to appear as though they might overtake the winners, but Roy Red Bird hurler, halted the usually potent Mansfield bats.

The victory was a costly one for Fostoria. Delfino, regular third baseman, suffered a broken leg in the eighth when he slid into third base after hitting his timely triple. Manager Bob Jones came in from center field to finish the game at the hot corner and Pontone, pitcher, was sent in to replace Jones.

Mansfield dropped four games behind Findlay and now trail the runner-up Lima Pandas by two games. It was the Braves second defeat in 10 games.

Harry Seligert, Mansfield first baseman, continued his fine hitting by pounding out three singles in four times at bat. He and Dick Morse, the latter getting two singles, were the only Braves to secure more than one hit.

Stover and the Braves return to the Fairground Saturday to tackle the Fremont club in a single contest at 9 p. m. It will be the only home appearance of the tribe until Tuesday when they play the Tiffin Mudhens at 8:30 p. m. at the Fairground.

Exact date of this clash at Jersey City's Roosevelt Stadium will be decided later.

That's what promoter Mike Jacobs announced after Baer, young California giant, knocked out Valentin Campolo, Argentine "iron man," in the first round and Comiskey of Paterson, N. Foxx, Grove Star

Former Hits Homer in 9th To Win Contest; Latter Allows Browns 6 Hits.

By JUDSON BAILEY

(Associated Press Sports Writer)
JIMMIE FOXX and Lefty Grove, who have been performing feats of baseball magic these many years, still can lift a rabbit out of a hat when occasion demands.

Occasion demanded yesterday and these two long-time associates beat the St. Louis Browns 3-1 to preserve the Boston Red Sox' shaky half-game grip on the American league lead.

Grove has been tottering for weeks as a starting pitcher. And when he stiffened the slugging Browns on six hits in this one he still was on the verge of losing 1-0 because one of the hits was a home run by Chet Laabs.

Then Foxx, who had shared Grove's glory for years, came to bat in the ninth inning with two on and two out and poked out his 14th homer of the season to win the game.

It was a bitter break for Emil Bidldi, the young southpaw who shut out Boston for eight innings. The Cleveland Indians were poised to take over the lead if Boston had been beaten. The Tribe beat the Washington Senators 5-4 in 11 innings.

In the National league the Brooklyn Dodgers nursed a new winning streak to five games and moved within a game of the pace-setting Cincinnati Reds by caging the St. Louis Cardinals 9-5.

The Pittsburgh Pirates battled the Boston Bees into a tie for the cellar spot with a 7-6 triumph.

The Chicago Cubs set off their biggest hitting fireworks of the season to trounce the Phillies 11-5. Among the Bruns' 17 hits were two homers by Bill Nicholson and three consecutive doubles by Phil Cavaretta.

The world champion New York Yankees and the Detroit Tigers both were out-rallied.

Pitcher Buck Ross hit a two-run homer as the Philadelphia Athletics nipped Buck Newsum for three runs in the third. Then Detroit batted Ross out of the box in the eighth only to have the A's score three more runs in the last half of the same inning and win 7-4.

The Chicago White Sox were held to three hits by Spud Chandler for eight innings but got three more and the ball game, 4-3, with a two-run uprising in the ninth.

NEW LONDON — Joe Boyle, popular New London filling station attendant, and well-known local ball player, will leave here very soon for a June 6 engagement with the Cincinnati Reds, National leaguers who are sponsoring a baseball school for young players on that date.

Boyle, a catcher, is a graduate of Wakeman high school. Since coming to New London, Boyle has been receiver for the New London Merchants during the past two seasons, and this year, he is catching for the Keller News nine of Norwalk.

In addition to being an excellent catcher, Boyle is a good hitter, with a two-year average with the Merchants of .305.

Snead Makes History

'Slammin' Sam' Hits Record 67 to Take Early Lead In National Open.

By EARL HILLIGAN

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND—The field in the 44th National Open golf championship answered the second round bell today, convinced that "Slammin' Sam" Snead—knocked out a year ago by one of sports greatest blow-ups—is off the floor and punching harder than ever.

Long an outstanding power player, Snead garnished his distance getting ability with a brilliant display of putting and approaching yesterday to come in with a remarkable five under par card of 33-34—67, the greatest first-round performance in National Open history.

This gave the young Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., professional a two-stroke lead on the pack as it started a second 18-hole trek over the Canterbury course and had practically everyone believing that Sam had recovered fully from that disastrous final-hole eight which robbed him of the open crown at Philadelphia in 1939.

Snead, who never has won a major championship even though he has been a big money and tournament winner since 1937, produced a game as hot as the sun which baked the Canterbury layout. His performance made him the first round leader in three of the last four opens.

Two strokes off the sizzling pace were Horton Smith of the Chicago district, Ed Oliver of Hornell, N. Y., and Sam Parks, Jr., of Pittsburgh, who won the open title in 1935. Smith and Oliver had nines of 35-34, while Parks went out in 34, two under par, and home in 35, one under regulation figures.

The 70 bracket listed battering Ben Hogan of Dublin, Tex., big money winner of the year, who had 37-33; Al Huske, a "husky" professional from Dekalb, Ill., and the veteran Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N. J., both had 35-35.

Playing around in 71 were Leland Gibson of Kansas City; Gene Sarazen, two time open champion from Brookfield Center, Conn.; Bob Babbish of the University of Detroit, low scoring amateur of the day; Andrew Carpenter of Baltimore and Henry Kaiser of Racine, Wis.

The defending champion, Byron Nelson of Toledo, was laying back in a fine spot to make his bid today and on tomorrow's final round of 36 holes. He had par nines of 36-36. With him were Craig Wood, Sam Byrd, Matt Kowal, Lawson Little and Leonard Dodson.

Indians Tackle Yankees; Cincinnati Entertains Dodgers

Feller To Toe Rubber

Bob Will Attempt to Protect Cleveland's Unbeaten Mark in Stadium.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Undeclared in Yankee stadium this season, the Cleveland Indians today entered the third phase of their eastern invasion—a three-game series with the champion New York club which may cause some revisions in this year's pennant predictions.

Their hitting and pitching revived, the Yanks are regaining their last season's form.

To offset this threat, Manager Oscar Vitt will send against the champions the bulk of his pitching strength, with Bob Feller drawing the opening assignment. The young fireballer has allowed the Yanks only one run in two full games.

Vitt plans to use Al Milnar, whose only defeat was at the hands of New York, in tomorrow's game and Al Smith, winner of five straight, in the finale.

Winning an extra-inning game 5 to 4 yesterday to square the count in their Washington four-game series, the Indians lead the Yankees by four and a half games.

A home run by Ray Mack tied the score in the eighth and Frankie Fytk's triple in the 11th enabled Cleveland to take the contest.

Washington reached starter Johnny Allen for nine hits before he was relieved in the eighth by Mel Harder, who shut out the Nats for three innings and was credited with the victory. Milnar took over in the 11th to hold the Tribe's lead, and yielded one blow. Cleveland pounded Sid Hudson for 13 hits.

Dizzy Goes--Without Fanfare

Not so many years ago Dizzy Dean was one of the big heroes of baseball—the kind of a fellow who drew crowds at every appearance. Today Dizzy is washed up as a major leaguer—or at least he's headed for the minors—and, as he departs with Mrs. Dean, those admiring fans are missing. Dizzy is shown in Chicago, going back to the Texas league whence he came.

Lima Pandas Shut Out Tiffin 19 to 0

TIFFIN—(P)—Lima's 19 to 0 shutout of Tiffin featured last night's Ohio State league program. Settlemire, Lima pitcher, allowed only eight hits, while the Pandas collected 20 off of Solomon and Franz.

Finding took its fourth straight victory, 12 to 4, over Fremont.

Fostoria bounced back after a double loss to Mansfield, whipping the Braves 8 to 4.

Bucky After Tenth

Walters Out to Maintain His Undeclared Hurling Record.

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI—With the Brooklyn Dodgers in town today, it is pertinent to examine certain claims put forth to the effect that they are a wonder team because they are almost in first place with only one .300 hitter in the lineup.

The fact doesn't give them a great edge over the Cincinnati Reds in the matter of going far on little power and the Reds have gone farther. If Dixie Walker is the only man to fear in the Brooks' batting order, then Ernie Lombardi and Frank McCormick are the only ones among the Red regulars.

Ernie is hitting .333 on 44 safeties in 132 tries and Frank's average is .306 on 52 for 170. The next highest regular is Harry Craft with a mere .259.

As a matter of fact, the average of the whole Red lineup, counting both Ival Goodman and Mike McCormick in right field until Ival's game wrist feels good again, is just .265—319 hits in 1,203 times at bat.

So the Reds can't exactly be called bombers either. Yet it's not all invincible pitching and fielding that's put them at the top of the National league.

The Cincinnati pitchers are good, the best in the league, according to many astute observers, but many's the time they've sent up a little prayer of gratitude for the well-timed hit. Or, frequently enough to be noted, they've contributed that hit themselves.

That's the situation today as Bucky Walters goes after his tenth straight victory, against either Tex Carleton, who pitched a no-hitter the last time he faced the Reds here, or Tot Pressnell.

Great Woman's Club Disbands

Edmonton Grads Quit After 15 Years Competition.

EDMONTON, Alta. (Canadian Press)—The Edmonton Grads, one of the greatest women's basketball clubs of all time, have disbanded because they were too good.

The Grads began their rise to fame 25 years ago, and for the past 15 years have held the senior women's world title.

The club disbanded after its silver anniversary banquet Wednesday night because of lack of competition and the resulting financial problem. The monotony of such a consistent winner undermined attendance.

J. Percy Page, school principal, coached the team to the hoop heights after he got the job by losing on the flip of a coin with the only other male member of the high school faculty in 1914.

The Grads met more than 220 teams, won 256 games, lost 22, and scored a total of 19,971 points against their opponents' 8,924. One winning streak ran to 78 games between 1926 and 1930.

Mitch's Corner Store softball team handed the Salvation Army club a 17 to 5 beating in a softball contest. It was not stated where the game was played. The box score was turned in too late for publication.

McKechie, J. Cronin To Lead All-Stars

ST. LOUIS—(U.P.)—Managers Bill McKechie of the Cincinnati Reds and Joe Cronin of the Boston Red Sox have been chosen to lead teams selected from their leagues in the all-star baseball game scheduled for Sportsmen's park here July 9. The major league advisory council said each all-star team will have 25 players—at least one from each club—to be selected by a majority vote of all managers from each league.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)—The amateur freuds, jungs and adlers who had a field day interpreting the mental processes of Samuel Jackson Snead at the finish of the 1939 National Open championship must feel slightly like idiots this bright and sunny Friday morning.

You remember the circumstances that brought a pseudopsychologist from beneath every rock a year ago. With the Open championship all but his, Snead took a three-over-par 8 on the 72nd hole at Philadelphia to throw away the title.

Amateur psychologist A said: "Snead's morale is broken. I have delved into his cerebrum and found this to be true."

Amateur psychiatrist B pronounced: "The very mention of the National Open will send Snead into a paroxysm of despair. I gained this from a study of his antebellum reactions."

Juvenile jug No. 3 had this to say: "My, my, my. Such a young man to have an inferiority complex draped about his shoulders. My insight into his post-bellum convinces me that he will be lucky ever to break 90 again."

Adolescent adler No. 4 dodged a check at the bar by sounding off with this inept opinion: "That 8 will haunt Samuel so long and so thoroughly that he'll wind up calling it 'Rebecca.'"

And so it went. He was pictured as a young Cooper, who'd always be a runner-up from now on.

It made one sad. Here, long before he reached 30, was a harassed hill-billy, a crushed cracker, a beaten boy who could never hold up his head again.

Now we skip a year and come to Thursday, June 6, 1940.

This wreck of a Snead; this flotsam and jetsam on the fairways of the earth, this derelict duffer, all he can do is go out and take the 7,000 yard long Canterbury course as if it were a dollar watch. He did it in 67 strokes, which was the best first round score ever to be posted in the National championship.

He accomplished something that the Hagens, the Jones, the Guldahs, the Sarazens, the McDermotts and the Quimets never could do over courses that often were easier than this Canterbury test.

Snead today was definitely the man to beat. He has forgotten the disaster of Philadelphia. In other words, he is not behind the eight ball at all.

Senators Take Second Place

Cop Position After Canton Licks Youngstown.

CANTON—(P)—League-leading Canton knocked Youngstown out of second place in the Mid-Atlantic league standings with a 9 to 8 victory last night.

The defeat enabled the Charleston Senators, which played a 13-inning 5 to 5 tie with the Dayton Wings, to move into the challenger position. The Charleston-Dayton fray was halted by the league's midnight playing deadline.

The Brown's made 10 hits to Canton's nine, but the Terriers managed to bunch theirs for four-run rallies in the fourth and sixth innings.

Akron came home to snap a five-game losing streak by downing Portsmouth 8 to 5. Akron made seven hits for five runs in the fifth inning.

Today's schedule: Dayton at Charleston, Portsmouth at Akron, Youngstown at Canton.

Merchants Win Brief Contest From Lima

The Mansfield Merchants girls' club topped the Lima City Loan girls' softball team by a 9 to 0 score in a four-inning tilt played under the lights at Upper Sandusky last night. The game, which was played before some 2,000 spectators, was halted at the end of the fourth to allow for other contests. Lima collected two hits off Clark.

GET 3RD SET OF BIDS ON CITY WATER METERS

Earlier Price Rejections Result In Lower Charge For New Equipment.

City officials for the third time today were studying bids submitted by seven firms on the purchase of 500 water meters. Similar bids were rejected on two previous occasions during the past three months because of price.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton declared a month ago, when the proposals were rejected for a second time, that he intended to purchase the meters at the "right price" or know the reason why.

He said today that the new proposals were more "in line" with prices paid for meters in other cities and unit prices were noticeably lower than quotations made three months ago.

He added, however, that contracts would not be awarded until after Mayor William J. Locke returns from a vacation.

Lowest bid was submitted by the Pittsburgh Equitable Meter company, Pittsburgh, Pa., which proposed a price of $4,250, or $668 less than the proposal made on the same number of meters a month ago.

Closest competitor was the Worthington-Gann company, Harrison, N. J., which bid $4,425, a proposal $607 less than the bid made in May.

Other bids, all lower than those turned in last month, were from the Phoenix Meter corporation, Staten Island, N. Y., $4,450; Buffalo Meter company, Buffalo, N. Y., $4,525; Badger Meter company, Milwaukee, Wis., $4,660; Neptune Meter company, New York City and the Hershey Manufacturing company, Boston, Mass., $4,985.

BACK IN JAIL

Liquor Law Violator Failed to Pay Out Fine.

Roy Mason, 33, of 145 1/2 North Main street, one of several Mansfielders sentenced or fined on liquor charge convictions several months ago, was taken back to the county jail late yesterday to serve out fines totaling $159.

Mason was taken into custody by police on a bench warrant after he failed to pay his fine. He was released from the county jail last March after he provided bond guaranteeing payment of the fines. He served several weeks in jail before he was released on bond.

Mason was fined for illegally possessing intoxicating liquor for sale and keeping a place where illegal intoxicants are sold.

Two Youths Arrested, Face Auto Theft Charges.

Captured by police who said they were driving a stolen automobile, a 16-year-old youth and his 17-year-old companion will be taken before Judge C. J. Anderson in juvenile court this afternoon.

Officers said they arrested the pair Wednesday night at Park avenue west and Walnut street. They were riding in an automobile reported stolen from the Westinghouse garage on East Fifth street. The car was owned by C. L. Bigler, R. D. 1, Lexington.

Police said the younger of the boys admitted taking the machine and then picking up his companion. He said they went for a ride to Ashland and had just returned to Mansfield when they were arrested.

This German Raider Will Bomb No More

Hit by anti-aircraft fire, this German Heinkel bomber is afire in midair and soon will crash with death for all occupants. This picture was passed by the British censor.

THEATERS

Enoch Arden In Reverse.

"My Favorite Wife" is far from a serious take off on the Enoch Arden theme with lovely Irene Dunne in the role of the shipwrecked wife and Cary Grant as the husband whose second honeymoon is interrupted by the appearance of his supposedly dead first wife. Randolph Scott and Gail Patrick are in supporting roles in this comedy which opens at the Ohio tomorrow.

Grant and Miss Dunne were teamed in the rollicking and romantic "The Awful Truth" of last season.

Character Trio.

Wallace Beery, the diamond-in-the-rough character actor, has a tailor made role in "20 Mule Team," which the Madison offers tomorrow and through the first two days of the week. Beery is seen as Bill Bragg, flea-bitten mule skinner of the desert trails, driving back and forth through blistering heat from borax mines to the railroad. Leo Carrillo plays his faithful swamper, Piute Pete, and Marjorie Rambeau, proprietor of a hotel and saloon of the desert, completes a trio of stars. Anne Baxter and Noah Beery, jr., provide romance.

Hypnotizes Savages.

Ann Sothern hypnotizes a threatening band of African savages with her tight fitting black sequin dress and a magician's act in "Congo Maisie," which heads the Ritz bill today and tomorrow. John Carroll is the soldier of fortune who shares her adventures. "Across the Plains" gives Jack Randall, movie cowboy, a chance to demonstrate his ridin' and shootin' ability in a western action story.

Comedy and Murder.

Melvyn Douglas plays a handsome, sophisticated, super-sleuth so well that he is given that type of role often, and he has it again in "The Amazing Mr. Williams." His long planned marriage to Joan Blondell is constantly interrupted by someone getting murdered. The cast of comedians includes Ruth Donnelly and Edward Brophy. Johnny Mack Brown in "Chip of the Flying U" is the second Majestic feature.

Action in Ghost Town.

One of California's "ghost towns" is the locale of "Thunder Mountain," which brings George O'Brien to the Park theater. O'Brien works to win one girl

ORCHARDS FACE DEER INVASION

KENTVILLE, N. S.—(U.P.)—Western Nova Scotia may be a game hunters' paradise, but Annapolis Valley orchardists take no comfort in the fact.

Unless immediate action is taken in the country, known as the "Land of Evangeline" because of Longfellow's epic poem, orchards will be wiped out, according to a warning by A. D. Pickett, Dominion entomologist.

The Nova Scotia Fruit Growers' association followed Pickett's warning with a request to the provincial government that they be allowed to kill deer at all times, with no season or bag restrictions, to keep them from nibbling the trees.

hilation of France and the annihilation of England; all else is beside the point."

In London, the American embassy urged all Americans without urgent reasons for remaining in England to return home on the S. S. Washington, which sails about June 15. The embassy warned that it might be their last opportunity until after the war.

If the French claims are true, about one-fifth of the Germans reported 2,000 tanks engaged in the massive conflict have been knocked out of action in the first 72 hours.

The French government radio also reported that two-thirds of the Nazi air force's famous dive-bombing Stukas had been destroyed.

With diminishing powers in these two prime factors of the blitzkrieg, it remains to be seen how far Germany's infantry can go in man-to-man fighting.

Aside from the official Nazi communique claiming breaks through the Weygand line—a statement unsupported by details—Berlin acknowledged that the German invasion was meeting the stiffest resistance.

They gave these reasons:

1. The French have not been taken by surprise.
2. The new "quicksand" defense strategy devised by Gen. Weygand has presented "a real problem" to the blitzkrieg.
3. The French are using far heavier arms "than the invaders might expect."

A French military spokesman estimated that the Germans were using about 40 divisions (some 480,000 men) in addition to four or five tank divisions.

A swarm of 200 Nazi planes passed around Paris to set off an early morning air-raid alarm, but their immediate destination was not known.

The British admiralty announced a three-mile curfew for merchant vessels around the United Kingdom, banned to all ships between sunset and sunrise, except in organized convoys, under threat of gunfire.

The poilus of France, fighting for every stone and bush and hedge of their homeland, found themselves slowly pushed back on both ends of the Somme-Aisne front, although they made a bold bid to retrieve their eastern flank positions with a charging counter-attack up the German-held heights of Chemin Des Dames.

In this eastern region, scene of a famous World war battle, the Germans advanced six tortuous miles in the second day of the resounding Somme offensive, and had pressed 60 to 70 miles from their evident goal—Paris.

On these new German positions the French launched their counter-attack, driving up the fiery slopes in a night-long conflict.

On the west flank, where German advance forces marched nearly 17 miles from the Abbeville vicinity to the Bresle river along the channel coast, the Nazis were within 75 miles of Le Havre but no nearer Paris than before. Even in the west, however, the French said the advance of the main German body of infantry was no more than six miles.

German dispatches from the front admitted the bitter nature of the French opposition.

These German dispatches said it was necessary to watch every cellar window, every ruined building, every rock and tree and bit of brush for the omnipresent French machine-gun nests and for French troops who dashed out at the German columns with rifle, knife and bayonet.

While the great battle progressed, German bombers stabbed at the British coast in the early morning for the second time in 24 hours. The British said several persons were hurt by minimized damage done in the sweeping raids along a 250-mile seaboard.

Heavy explosions and anti-aircraft fire were heard to the south of Paris, and a 35-minute air raid alarm was sounded in the capital itself this morning, beginning at 5:12 a. m. (11:12 p. m. EST).

Italians waited for Premier Mussolini's evaluation of an apparent friendly gesture by France's Premier Paul Reynaud. The Reynaud suggestion, in an address, that "divergencies of interests" could be settled by peaceful means—without naming Italy directly—was described by one well informed Fascist as "very important." He said that Mussolini's reaction was the only important one in Italy.

Brief Nazi Communique Claims Entire Line Broken

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN—The German high command declared today that the Weygand line has been "broken through on the entire front."

Its terse communique, following Nazi acknowledgement that the offensive toward Paris had run into stiff resistance on the Allies' new defense line, offered no details.

Unusually brief, it devoted only two sentences to the great battle in France:

"Operations of the army and air force south of the River Somme and the Aisne-Oise canal are successfully progressing according to plan."

"The Weygand line was broken through on the entire front."

Besides that bare announcement, its only reports on the current battle were of successful bombing raids on British air bases last night, of Allied air losses of 74 planes against nine German planes and of the sinking of an Allied speedboat off the coast of northern France.

As Nazis pictured the battle situation, the German left wing was being held almost stationary while the right flank presses down the coast, apparently toward Dieppe and Le Havre, in an attempt to break the Allies' shortest communications line.

Authorized Nazi sources, meanwhile, said Germany had a two-fold war aim—"the annihilation of France and the annihilation of England. . . . Everything beyond that . . . can only be revealed at the autopsy."

ITALIAN SHIPS ORDERED INTO NEUTRAL PORTS

New York Manager Declares It 'Looks Like War' Soon For Fascists.

Verrando said other Italian vessels in American waters were expected to put into U. S. ports between Key West and Cape Hatteras by noon today, indicating that speed was a necessary factor in the Italian plans.

The order from Rome told ship captains to "put into the nearest neutral port at once," Verrando said.

"Our ship captains are allowed to use their discretion about what to do," he added. "We do know that all our vessels are safe."

"We do not expect to get much more from Rome," Verrando said. "We have our orders and will follow them."

Gayda Repeats Warning to America.

(By International News Service)

ROME—For the second day in succession, Virginia Gayda, press spokeswoman for Premier Mussolini, today warned the United States against participation in the European conflict.

His second editorial on the subject in the influential newspaper Giornale D'Italia coincided with a number of new developments emphasizing the imminence of Italian entry into the war.

One was the appointment of Marshal Emilio De Bono, hero of the early stages of the Ethiopian campaign, as commander of Italy's southern armies. Another was the report that the entire French embassy staff except the ambassador and his three principal attaches had "received" their passports.

Under the heading "The American Whiplash," Gayda wrote: "American intervention beside the British and French would have programmatic advantages."

"But it would have real disadvantages as well. The history of the European war during the last few months is instructive in this connection."

In his first article yesterday, Gayda warned that American participation might result in retaliatory measures which would nullify the Monroe doctrine.

Warns Italy on Move Into Balkans.

LONDON—(AP)—A Russian warning to Italy to keep hands off the Balkans has been broadcast by the Moscow radio, the London Daily Express said today.

According to the newspaper, the Russian announced said that "just as Russia intervened in Finland because she felt her security threatened, she may intervene in the Balkans if Italy attempts aggression in southeastern Europe."

Galion

GALION—Convention plans were discussed by members of Pi chapter Alpha Pi Sigma sorority, at the regular business meeting Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. Carl Schnelker. The state convention will be held July 19 and 20, at Newark, Ohio, and plans were made to attend the sessions. Mrs. William Goshorn presided. In two weeks, the sorority will hold a social meeting, and the hostesses will be Mrs. Schnelker and Mrs. Goshorn.

The engagement and approaching marriage of Ruth A. Morkel of Galion to Paul M. Daniels, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Daniels of Lake Worth, Florida, was announced here Monday night at a party given by Miss Morkel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Morkel of Cherry street. The ceremony will be performed at the home of the bride's grandfather, L. J. Snyder, and the couple will live in Florida. Miss Morkel is a past matron of the local chapter of the Order of Eastern Star. She was graduated from Galion high school in 1930. Her fiancé is a building contractor in Florida. There were 16 guests present for the party.

When the Daughters of Union Veterans met Tuesday afternoon at the Galion armory, the group planned to attend the department convention to be held in Columbus the week of June 16. Mrs. Vergie Kester will go as delegate, and Mrs. George Beach will attend as president of the local society. Relief work for the past two weeks was reported at $23.50. There was a good attendance, and lunch was served by Mrs. John Bittner, Mrs. Grey Whitesell, Mrs. Clyde Richardson and Katherine King.

The quarterly meeting of the Ladies' Adult Bible class was held at the First Reformed church, Tuesday night. For the business session, Mrs. Silas Shumaker presided. The program and lunch was provided by a committee headed by Mrs. Ida Schaffner.

of Alger, O., was parked at the time and was properly lighted. Harsh, who was in the cab, was uninjured and the truck was only slightly damaged. The car was demolished. The accident occurred at 2:30 a. m. on Main street, near Seltzer street.

Hall was rushed to Emergency hospital where he was pronounced dead. He had sustained a fractured skull and broken leg and arm.

Hall was employed at the Perfection Vault company at Galion and was said to have taken two Crestline men to their homes on his way to Bucyrus.

He is survived by his wife, Leah, three children, Donald, Betty and Joan; four brothers, Harold of Bucyrus, Charles, James and Robert of Chicago; and four sisters, Mrs. Clarence Cotsamire, Mrs. Milford Scott, Mrs. Florence Dailley, all of Bucyrus, and Mrs. Carl Stinehelfer, Galion.

The body was taken to the Henderson and Lutz funeral home at Bucyrus. Funeral arrangements had not been made today.

PLAN SERVICES

Shelby Churches to Present Special Programs Sunday.

SHELBY—Children's Day will be observed Sunday at a number of Shelby churches with the children of the respective Sunday school departments presenting special programs instead of regular services.

At First Presbyterian church department superintendent, Miss Margaret Jones assisted by Leonard Linsenmayer, speech coach at Shelby high school, will have charge of the program.

A feature of this service during the morning will be a playlet, "David and Goliath," with speaking parts written by Coach Linsenmayer.

First Methodist church will hold its program also in the morning in charge of the various children department superintendents. Supt. C. G. Keck of the Shelby schools, general superintendent of the Methodist Sunday school will have charge of general arrangements. Children will take special parts sters was also a responsibility to be shared by motorists since city playgrounds had been closed for the first time in years due to the lack of operating funds.

"This had forced a great many of the children to seek the streets as recreation spots and motorists will do well to observe extreme caution while driving," the chief asserted.

He said that a motorcycle officer had been detailed for duty daily and that officers would deal harshly in cases of speeding and unsafe driving.

It was pointed out that three of the four child victims yesterday were children under five years of age who have not been in school and have not had the benefit of any safety education.

"This is a responsibility that rests with the parents," he said, declaring that smaller children should not be allowed to cross the streets alone.

Meanwhile two of yesterday's automobile accident victims, Kenneth Workman, 7, of 133 Lexington avenue, and Evelyn Hones, 4, of 166 West Fourth street, were reported in "good" condition at General hospital today.

The Workman boy suffered a possible skull fracture when struck by an automobile while crossing the street in front of his home and the Hones child received head injuries when she walked in front of an automobile near her home.

Larry Keeler, 5, of 45 1/2 Douglas street, and Patricia Ann Makowski, 4, of 206 McPherson street, both hit by cars were treated for bruises and lacerations.

PLANS ENTERTAINMENT SHELBY—The first of the Saturday night entertainments planned by the Shelby Better Business club at Central School bandstand will be held June 15.

mission, and when it ended there were signs that major decisions might have been reached. One commission member, Leon Henderson of the SEC, told reporters cryptically, "it is pretty certain there will be some action."

Earlier Secretary Morgenthau disclosed that the Allies had sought permission to buy up "surplus World-war armaments" held here. Attorney General Jackson ruled that sale of the material was not banned by law. A final decision in the matter, it was said, would be up to the president.

Congressional reaction to the navy's plane "trade in" was divided.

Chairman Pitman (D. Nev.) of the senate foreign relations committee said the government had no control over what was done with the planes once they had been returned to the manufacturer, and hence no violation of international law was involved.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, JUNE 7, 1940.

War is an ingenious device whereby a nation can work much harder and get much less for it.

Dewey still holds a lead in the Gallup poll—but there seems to be a dark horse hammering down the home stretch at terrific speed.

When it was originally remarked, "Millions for defense but not one cent for tribute," there was no idea that it would eventually be "billions."

Job Prospects for Graduates

NOW that you have received your high school diploma, what are you planning to do next?

That question might properly be put to the several hundred young men and women who were graduated last night from Mansfield Senior high school, and additional hundreds who have been graduated in recent weeks from other high schools in this county and vicinity.

A considerable number of these graduates are looking forward to college, but for the majority completion of high school marks the end of classroom work and the beginning of the serious business of making a place for themselves in an adult world.

"I am looking for a job," many of them will soon be saying, and some will be disappointed because there appears to be a scarcity of jobs.

"Just what sort of a job do you want? What particular kind of work are you able to do? How much do you expect to earn at the start? Are you industrious, honest, sober, reliable, and can you be depended upon to do your work well without constant costly supervision? Or do you want an easy job, with short hours and good pay, so as to keep up the costs of a car and 'have a good time' without letting your work interfere?"

These are a few of the things that might as well be decided by youthful graduates even before they start out to hunt for a job, for they will become vitally important at some later time in determining the happenings of the next several years, as well as forecasting the probable status of each of the graduates by the time ten, twenty or thirty years have rolled around.

RECENT surveys have shown that "overall" jobs offer better employment opportunities for 1940 high school graduates than what are termed "white-collar" jobs, and special training is recommended in skilled, semi-skilled and technical occupations.

Skilled trades and production operations offer the widest single field of employment endeavor for young men who graduate from high school this year, it is revealed. Salesmanship will continue to offer attractive opportunities to those adapted to this work. Employment as farm hands also is high in estimated job opportunities, followed in order by construction laborers, auto mechanics, factory laborers, office clerks, stock and store clerks, machinists, and inside salespersons.

Estimated field of job opportunities for girl graduates from high school are in salesmanship, office work and the service trades. In the opinion of persons contacted during one Ohio survey, "Maids who can cook, and waitresses who are neat, clean and efficient, will probably be in high demand." General stenographers, trained nurses, hairdressers, private secretaries, bookkeepers, social workers, dietitians and grade teachers are also listed as providing possible occupational openings for specially trained young women.

Many employers have expressed belief that too many young people have been preparing for "white-collar" jobs, and that more youths should train for skilled or production occupations and trades, which offer better opportunities for employment, usually at higher rates of pay.

Present employment opportunities are regarded as being equal to those of any other time for high school and college graduates "who apply themselves and are not satisfied to remain ordinary and mediocre."

So, in 1940, as in 1900, in 1920, and in all the other years, it is very much up to the individual graduate.

More Traffic Crashes In City

TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS have become so commonplace in Mansfield that the police department report of 102 crashes in this city last month, as compared with 85 for the preceding month, is casually accepted as unavoidable.

And, with the laxity of enforcement of traffic regulations in Mansfield, it may be regarded as fortunate that there are not more collisions, injuries and deaths inside the city limits than there have been.

It has been the experience in many other cities that consistent enforcement of traffic regulations, with arrest assured for habitual violators, has been effective in improving the driving practices of the type of motorists who require restraint.

Mansfield's experiments in enforcement have thus far been too sporadic and undependable to furnish a basis for estimate of what might be accomplished here under conditions that made compliance with traffic laws compulsory.

The excessive speed at which cars are driven on residence streets, the extent to which stop signs are ignored, the all-day parking in restricted areas and the arrogance with which traffic is impeded by double parking, are merely a few examples of the break-down of respect for traffic regulations which has come about in Mansfield as a result of police lassitude.

Outside of the city the state highway patrolmen are doing a good job of traffic law enforcement—to the extent of their limited personnel.

It may at least be hoped that present interest in finding a solution to local traffic problems will shortly result in a better job of traffic policing INSIDE the city than has recently been done.

Japan Explains Interest

THERE is word from Tokyo that the Japanese are going to demand a voice in any settlement of the European war. They take this attitude although, so far, they do not seem to have had anything to do with the war, and have no obvious connection with the part of the world they consider "the Japanese sphere."

Explanation is found in an accompanying remark. Japan, say Tokyo state-men, is "highly concerned with the fate of the Dutch East Indies." The fact is well known, although recent diplomatic statements have said Japan had no designs against those islands.

Newspaper readers shouldn't carry their patriotism so far as to avoid reading the fifth column.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt has a way with him. The other day when the international situation was as tense as all-get-out (name a day recently when it hasn't been), I wandered into the afternoon press conference. The president's dome-shaped office was sardine-canned to the screen doors.

You could almost feel the tension. The boys who labor in the news marts were full of questions. Only capital etiquette kept them from pouring out.

Then the president began to speak—slowly, casually—like an actor building up to a dramatic climax. He let them have it all at once. Then, just as slowly, he backed away—dropped off into a long, agonizing lull of explanation. Then again he struck an important point, and tripped off slowly to his exit line.

Hours later, after the copy was all in, we realized the things we really wanted to ask would have to await another day.

That President Roosevelt—when it comes to handling his public pronouncements—he is a one.

Took HIS Story. WHEN the curtain came, there wasn't a man (or woman) in the room who wasn't dying to dash for a telephone or fresh air or a chair. Questions were forgotten. The things we really wanted to know were buried by either a column and a half of good news or explanation.

There being no advance billing on Don's appearance, I don't see how all the Capitol stenographers and secretaries found out. That just shows how fast the old grapevine travels. And when natty, sunburned Don made his entrance in Hollywood gray, the girls were jammed around the committee-room table.

I think Don came to talk about the block-busting bill. He got in something about how impossible it is for a producer to tell customers what a picture is about before it's finished. Then Representative Brown, of the Ohio Browns, started discussing his fan mail—not Ameche's, Brown's.

Shirley and Mickey, Too. MR. BROWN had received a letter from Mr. Ameche. Mr. Ameche couldn't be sure whether he wrote or just approved it. Which was all right and according to best congressional etiquette.

Until Mr. Brown explained that he and other members of the committee had received similar letters from Mickey Rooney and Shirley Temple (retired).

At about this time, Don went up in his lines and didn't regain his equilibrium until the session was over, and the stenogs and secretaries started screaming for autographs. This was home ground, and the Ameche knew just what to do and say.

I couldn't get through the feminine phalanx. I wanted to ask Don how he felt about his performance. And I'd bet a saron to a song by Ameche that his answer would have been: "Boy I'll never play a return engagement in congress!"

Notice to ambulance chasers: The federal communications commission (the boys who rule the ether) is somewhat limited, in interstate activities but it went into high gear on a complaint from Illinois. The FCC wouldn't name the town or persons involved, but it laid down the law to an Illinois undertaking firm. If the firm persisted in using police radio calls for the purpose of soliciting business, the FCC opined said undertakers soon would have to undertake to get themselves out of the kink.

Looking Back TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY Monday, June 7, 1920.

Home shortage in Mansfield was becoming more acute, due to city's rapid growth.

Organization of Y. W. C. A. was completed and temporary quarters secured in Holm building, East Third street.

Miss Eleanor Cappeller left for Southampton, Mass., to attend commencement of Smith college.

Retail price of gasoline advanced one cent, to 30 cents a gallon.

Scott Hazlett moved from Ashland to 183 North Mulberry street.

William Johns, East Mansfield, was injured when automobile collided with buggy in which he was riding.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY Friday, June 7, 1935.

Miss Mary Werner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Werner, 524 Euclid avenue, won first honors for scholastic achievement at John Simon Junior high school.

Mercury read 39 degrees, a new low for June.

Announcement was made of the coming marriage of Miss Margaret Van Derau to Dean Fichter, to be an event of June 29.

Rev. D. B. Miller was honored on his 45th birthday by members of Ruth chapter, O. E. S. 17, at Masonic Temple.

Announcement was made of the coming marriage of Miss Elizabeth Day of Mansfield to Herbert Ennis of New York, a former local resident, to be solemnized June 15, and gallantry in battle.

THE war has set Mr. Eltinge reminiscing about his own European adventures. While he was strolling in Berlin, in the Tiergarten one day, an equerry stepped up and said: "His Imperial Majesty the Kaiser, whose carriage you see halted ahead of you, instructs me to present his compliments and to inquire the breed of your dog."

Flattered, Eltinge gave him the information. He thought, "Gee, this is the nuts. This is great stuff. Even the Kaiser likes my dog."

But instead of a courtesy, equerry turned without a word and returned to the carriage, which then drove off. Eltinge remained genuinely puzzled by this behavior until he remembered the precise words of his reply: "My dog is the nuts. This is great stuff. Even the Kaiser likes my dog."

THOSE NEW NEIGHBORS

Man About Listen, World!

You're Being Graduated Into Life.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

NEW YORK—We are warned by Julian Eltinge, who already has "retired for good" five separate and distinct times, that this may be his final appearance in public as an entertainer.

And on the off chance that he may mean it this time we dropped in for a chat with the world's best known female impersonator—first, to ask him a few questions about a real estate venture he and Sol Bloom, now a congressman, entered into some time ago, and second, to sort of close out the era, if this appearance really is his last.

Of all the hundreds and thousands of people who have come to Broadway, touched it, and given a bit of their personalities to it, Eltinge is one of the few, one of the six or seven or a dozen, who has had a Broadway theater named after him. This is the Eltinge, on 42nd street, once a celebrated playhouse but now a dowdy shooting gallery given to the cinema of the third and fourth run variety.

AL WOOD, the producer, had a hand in this theater. Wood is the sort of producer who likes to keep miniature sets of his plays in his office. You walk into his office today, and on his desk you will find a miniature scaffold, with a dangling noose. This is an exact replica of a scene from one of his earlier hits. Wood, Eltinge and Sol Bloom built the Eltinge. "It was a beautiful little house," Julian recalls, "but we discovered a few days before opening it that it had no elevator or dressing rooms. So we had the carpenters tack up little cubbies in the wings for dressing rooms. They were man-killers and back-breakers. I guess they were the worst dressing rooms of the 'cottage' variety in theatrical history. We had a little toy elevator put in, too—a miniature scenic railway holding a man and a half. We tried to get some value out of it by advertising it as the smallest elevator in the world."

What is Julian Eltinge doing in New York and why isn't he on his California ranch? There is now a notice posted on his door to this effect: "For Sale—One $300,000 ranch for $40,000.—J. Eltinge."

"That ranch, I just found out, never earned a dime since the day I bought it. Now that I am in the clutches of Billy Rose I doubt that I will have time to do anything further about it this season. Rose is a man who proposed that I forget all about my previous requirements and come to Manhattan. So here I am at the Diamond Horseshoe, on Broadway, right where I was 30 years ago."

THE war has set Mr. Eltinge reminiscing about his own European adventures. While he was strolling in Berlin, in the Tiergarten one day, an equerry stepped up and said: "His Imperial Majesty the Kaiser, whose carriage you see halted ahead of you, instructs me to present his compliments and to inquire the breed of your dog."

Flattered, Eltinge gave him the information. He thought, "Gee, this is the nuts. This is great stuff. Even the Kaiser likes my dog."

But instead of a courtesy, equerry turned without a word and returned to the carriage, which then drove off. Eltinge remained genuinely puzzled by this behavior until he remembered the precise words of his reply: "My dog is the nuts. This is great stuff. Even the Kaiser likes my dog."

MAYTIME on MacMurray college campus, in Jacksonville, Ill. . . . with the air gay with girls' giggles and graduation plans.

Oh, those 20-year-old plans! Remember the hours when you lay deep in the tangled clover, dreaming of castles or careers—or just a two-room "walk-up" heaven with The Only Man! For every woman is graduated at twenty, whether she leaves a famous campus or takes a job behind some notion counter—or, starchy-eyed, whispers "I do!"

Is graduated in to that toughest "finishing school" of all—LIFE. And never was the trail ahead so blurred and bewildering as for these youngsters of today.

Because of that, I'm passing on an article The Senior Class of 1940 asked me to do. For it holds all I would say to every troubled youngster anywhere—working girl, student or dismayed young wife, if I could put my hand on her shoulder, and my fire into her heart.

"Will you be guest columnist in our Senior Year Book?" wired Alice Alexander.

But, on second thought, how pride! But, on second thought, how pride! But, on second thought, how pride! But, on second thought, how pride!

But, getting back to that guest column—I know, of course, what's usually said under these circumstances. There's that famous line in a popular song, "Stay as Sweet as You Are!" By tacit approval that line has become the approved motif for all graduation articles.

Looking at your laughing faces . . . watching the dreams come and go in your lovely eyes . . . I'm supposed to smirk, sigh and say: "Don't change, my dear! Keep your illusions . . . cherish your romantic visions . . . keep away from the sordid world and stay as sweet as you are."

But I'm not going to give you that advice! It would be neither honest, wise, nor a compliment to the class of 1940. For I do not believe that "sweetness" is your chief asset, nor your greatest mission. Pretty, polite puppets? Not you! You're something far more passionate and potent—YOU'RE DYNAMITE! You're filled with fire and force . . . and cleansing fun . . . and the flaming torch of Timely Editorial Hatch Bill Should be Passed.

The Hatch bill to extend restrictions on political activities to apply to state employees partly paid from federal funds has, after much delay, been approved by the house judiciary committee. The measure already has passed the Senate. The bill, if finally enacted, would be expected to extend the statute passed at the last session to stop attempts to buy elections with public funds. The legislation is intended to promote clean politics. No sound arguments can be offered against it.

The delay and jockeying which the house committee used on this measure before giving approval is not to the glory of that committee. A petition was circulated to force the bill from the committee before it acted. A pigeon-holing attempt was roundly protested both in and outside of congress.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Tip-off on the third term question is the extent to which the Democratic hopefuls, who up until recently were campaigning for the presidential nomination, now are preoccupied with jockeying for the vice presidency. They not only take it for granted that Roosevelt will run again, but they are not even arguing about it.

Only exception is Jim Farley. He still is as irreconcilable as ever. New Dealers attribute this to the fact that Roosevelt's candidacy means finis for Jim's chances for a place on the ticket. (Both he and FDR are from New York.) Whatever the reason, he is standing pat on his opposition to a third term.

Behind the scenes, however, the others are falling all over themselves scrambling for a position on the bandwagon. Not the least among them is Jack Garner. Publicly, he has refused to say whether he would run with Roosevelt again, but his intimates are boosting him hard.

Similarly, friends of Burt Wheeler are busy peddling his wares. When questioned personally, the Montana senator goes through the motions of poo-pooing the importance of the vice presidency, but there is no trace of that in the way his intimates are boosting him for the job. They are offering bets that Wheeler would grab the nomination in a flash if offered him.

So would Paul McNutt, Senator Jimmy Byrnes, House Floor Leader Sam Rayburn, Speaker William Bankhead, Senator Alben Barkley and other lesser lights. None of them would have to be asked twice—and they make no bones about it.

White House Choice. WHITE HOUSE preference, however, revolves around three men—Attorney General Bob Jackson, Justice Bill Douglas, and Governor Lloyd Stark of Missouri.

Big obstacle in Jackson's path is geography. He is far and away Roosevelt's first choice, but he also comes from New York. There is a constitutional restriction on two candidates from the same state on the same ticket. Jackson might not be barred from running, but the New York electoral vote would have to be sacrificed if he did.

That is, even if the Democrats carried the state, the electors would be required by the Constitution to vote for at least one non-New Yorker either for president or for vice president. However, this need not mean that New York would go to the GOP; so if Roosevelt thinks he could sweep the country he might risk a default on the New York vote.

While geography is Jackson's biggest handicap, it is Stark's principal advantage. The midwest may be the key to the election and this, plus Stark's background as an anti-machine crusader, war veteran and a famous fruit grower may weigh the scales in his favor. Douglas offers the geographical compromise, as he represents both the east and west states. Born and reared in Washington state, Douglas has eastern ties through a legal residence in Connecticut established as a Yale law professor. Personally he does not want to leave the supreme court, but if the president asks him to run he would resign to do so.

Political Chaff. ONE of Alf Landon's hardest jobs is scotching booms for himself. Practically every day, by long distance phone or telegraph, he has to nip the plan of some admirer to start a drive for him.

One of the highlights of the Montana Democratic convention was a speech by Senator Burt Wheeler urging the preservation of democratic principles—after which his well-oiled machine blocked a roll-call vote vehemently demanded by Roosevelt third-termers, on a resolution endorsing Wheeler as the "favorite son" delegate . . . Joe Pew, sadistic GOP Pennsylvania boss, is telling intimates that the international situation is rapidly making Hoover a dark horse possibility. Pew is close to Hoover, and should he decide to back the ex-president the latter might get the nomination . . . Latest aspirant to enter the congressional arena is squar Louis B. Ward, editor of Father Coughlin's Social Justice. This is Ward's second try. In 1936 he ran for a Democratic senatorial nomination without success.

Aid the Allies. ADMINISTRATION leaders are amazed at the speed with which pro-Allied sentiment is sweeping the country. Some of them privately say that they think the country is ahead of the president.

One indication is the tremendous response received by William Allen White's Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies. In Baltimore, for instance, an insignificant notice of the establishment of a branch was published in one paper and brought 10,000 replies. Although contributions were not requested, the first mail brought $1,050.

Outside Baltimore the response to the movement to Defend America by Aiding the Allies has been so overwhelming that many branches of the committee in different cities can hardly handle the avalanche of support.

Merry-Go-Round. BERNARD BARUCH says the last war cost the U. S. 13 billion dollars more than it should have, due to lack of price controls. . . . U. S. Ambassador Steinhart looks in vain for a day of rest in Moscow. The Soviet have outlawed Sunday; they take one day of rest every six days. But it usually coincides with a week-day in Washington when the state department is at work—and its cables keep Steinhart at work. . . . SEC Commissioner Leon Henderson went back to his class reunion at Swarthmore college, where 20 years ago they called him "Dub." The class parade was headed by a sign reading—"Wall Street—Don't Be Afraid of Henderson." We Knew Him When He Was "Dub."

Bricker Decides Special Session Question Soon

LEGISLATURE CALL LIKELY IN TWO WEEKS

Relief Needs of Various Communities Are Studied

By Governor.

(By International News Service) COLUMBUS — Gov. John W. Bricker announced today that he would decide within the next few days whether it will be necessary to call the legislature into special session to consider relief legislation.

If a special session is ordered, it will be held within the next two weeks, before the Republican national convention, in Philadelphia, the governor said.

Although Bricker said his decision would be deferred until after conferring with State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood to ascertain information about local relief levies voted recently, most observers expected that a special session would be called.

Mayor Harold Burton, of Cleveland, came to the capital to confer again with the governor on relief and, it was assumed, on plans for the November election. Burton is the Republican nominee for U. S. senator and Bricker is seeking a second term.

Burton told newsmen he would not press for a special session of the legislature pending the decision of the state supreme court in a case to test constitutionality of delinquent tax bonds which Cuyahoga county proposes to issue to finance relief.

Bonds in the sum of $2,200,000 would be issued against delinquent taxes under the proposal. If the supreme court should hold it unconstitutional, the mayor said a special legislative session would be inescapable.

Whether the call for a special session, if one is issued would be widened to permit legislation separating state and national tickets on the November election ballots has not been determined by the governor, he said.

Most observers believed that it would be because of considerable agitation from a number of Republican party leaders in that connection. Their motive is to avoid losses to the state and county tickets through straight-ticket voting, should there be a Democratic trend in the presidential election.

If the ballot is split, a number of GOP leaders have said that it should be done before the Philadelphia national convention so that the action cannot be interpreted by the Democrats as reflecting against the Republican presidential nominee.

Governor Bricker declared at his press conference, his first since returning from speaking engagements in Wisconsin and Minnesota, that resolutions requesting a change in the ballot have been received from a number of county Republican committees. This morning, he said, one came from the Wood county committee.

A special session also in all probability would be called upon to revise Ohio old age pension laws, raising the maximum monthly pension from $30 to $40, to conform with recent federal assistance legislation.

4-H CLUB PLANS SUMMER EVENTS

Committee Named for Community Service Projects.

Three committees were named Thursday afternoon at a meeting of the Sunny Sewers 4-H club of East Mansfield to arrange the club's activities for the summer.

Appointed to the community service committee were Ruth Sabo, chairman; Esther Harry, Frances Davies, and Anna Mae Bell. Members of the picnic committee are Donna Lisekam, chairman; Helen Brumenshkel and Dorothy Bierly. Chosen as a committee to organize a soft ball team and arrange a schedule were Wanda Lisekam, chairman; Alma June Rose, Jo Ann Morrow and Dorothy Briggs.

The club's next meeting will be June 20 at the East Mansfield school.

PICNIC SUNDAY

Plans for three events were outlined by the Phalanx fraternity during a meeting at the Y. M. C. A. last night.

A picnic for members and guests will be held Sunday at the Y. M. C. A. camp, Camp Nelson Dodd, near Brinkhaven. The group will meet at the "Y" at 11 a. m. Arrangements are in charge of Robert Stone, president, and Vernon Smeitzer.

June 13 the group will hold a joint meeting with the Beta Kappa Tau sorority, and a dinner dance has been set for June 20.

MUNY OFFICES ASK $373,785 TO RUN IN '41

Budget Seeks $70,000 More Than Actual Appropriations Made for '40 Operations.

A tentative draft calling for a general operating fund of $373,785 for municipal departments in 1941 had been prepared today by city officials.

The amount is $14,000 more than was sought last year for 1940 operations and is $70,000 higher than funds actually allocated to the same departments for this year's operations.

The draft calling for expansion of man power in the city's safety departments as a major item will probably be submitted to council's finance committee next week, Service-Safety Director C. M. Grafton said today.

Administration officials will meet with the finance committee to pare the amounts to meet the 1941 anticipated revenues and it is not expected that full amounts sought by the various department heads will be included in the final budget.

The finance committee must whip the budget into shape before the regular July meeting as the draft must be in the hands of the county budget commission before July 20.

Major increases in budget requests include a $13,000 hike in police department funds, a $7,000 boost in the fire department, and an $8,000 increase in the parks department.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates, request includes increases for eight additional men on the police force and the replacement of four cruisers.

The fire department's increase is for four additional while the increase in the parks is for additional funds to improve the park system.

70 BACK ON JOB

Pennsylvania Railroad Starts Track, Roadbed Inspection.

Pennsylvania railroad officials today announced the recall of 70 furloughed employees in the Mansfield district as part of the 1,000 called back to work in the central region.

C. R. Montgomery, district track supervisor, said the men were being recalled by the company for the annual inspection of tracks and roadbeds.

Work on the project which includes general repairs and rehabilitation of the right of way will begin within the next two weeks. The Mansfield district extends from Crestline to Wooster, Montgomery said.

Fur Smugglers Arrested With $30,000 Cargo

DETROIT.—U. S. Customs today held between $20,000 and $30,000 worth of raw silver fox furs and a cabin cruiser which was seized at midnight following an attempt by two men to bring the pelts here from Canada.

The 500 furs were in five large burlap bags. Two men were arrested. They gave their names as Nathan Rosen, of Chicago, and James Heaton, Detroit. A car seen near where the cabin cruiser tied up sped away when the patrol boarded the boat. Police were searching for the occupants of the automobile.

Customs officials pointed out that the duty on silver fox furs had recently been increased 50 percent to prevent the American market from being flooded with Canadian furs which could no longer be sold in Europe.

HEAR GRANBY

Cedar Point Visitors to See Baseball Broadcast.

Mansfield baseball fans will have an opportunity of witnessing one of Jack Granby's recreations of a Cleveland baseball game, when the sportscaster will broadcast for two days next week from Cedar Point.

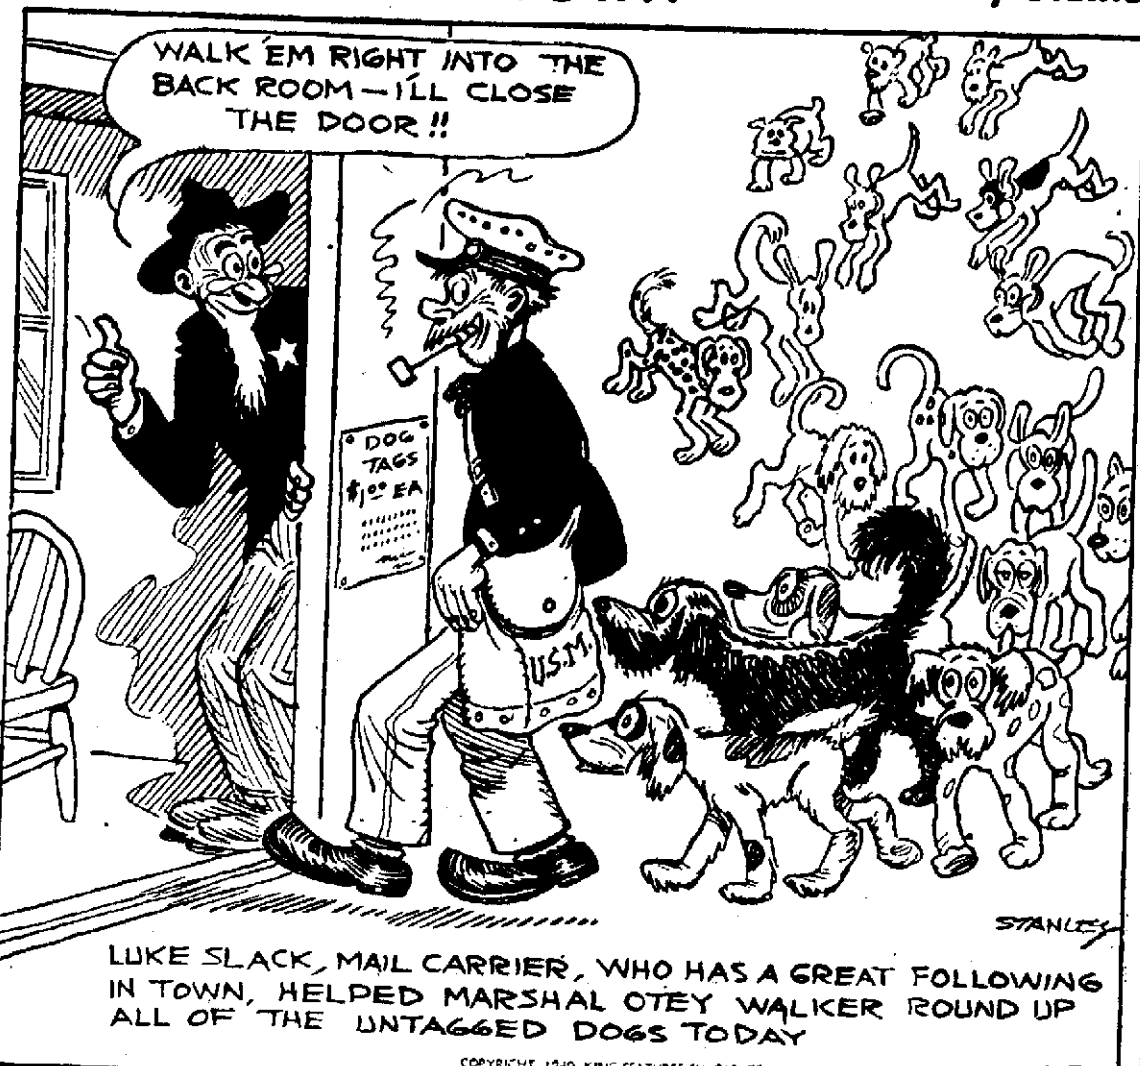

For two days, June 11 and 12, Granby will broadcast the recreation of the Cleveland-Boston games, to be played in Boston, from Cedar Point over station WCLE, Cleveland.

PRACTICALLY BROKE

NEW YORK.—Col. Jacob Ruppert, the baseball and brewing magnate, left an estate of only about $7,000,000 instead of the $30,000,000 to $70,000,000 with which he was popularly credited, the executor tentatively announced today. He died in January, 1939.

FACES ELYRIA DEATH CHARGE

Mansfield Driver Accused of Manslaughter in Lorain County Traffic Death.

Manslaughter charges were filed today in Elyria against Luther Castleberry, 36, of 81 McPherson street, as result of an automobile accident last Saturday afternoon near Vermilion in which a Cleveland man was killed.

Affidavit for Castleberry's arrest was signed by Highway Patrolman Earl Davey. It was filed in an Elyria justice of peace court yesterday. Lorain officers were expected here sometime this afternoon to serve Castleberry with the papers.

Castleberry, a steel worker, was the driver of an automobile involved in a head-on collision on U. S. route 6, east of Vermilion, in which Frank Bennyhoff, 40, of Cleveland was killed. The car was driven by Mrs. Lola Bennyhoff, 39, his wife, who was seriously injured.

With Castleberry was his 16-year-old daughter, Dorothy. Both were injured and were treated at St. John's hospital, Lorain.

ELECT SNYDER

Knights of Columbus Hold Reorganization Meeting.

Paul S. Snyder was elected grand knight of Mansfield Council No. 686, Knights of Columbus, as that group elected officers for the 1940-41 term last night. He succeeds W. B. Guisinger.

Other officers chosen are Thomas J. McDermott, deputy grand knight; John Dalton, Jr., chancellor; J. Frank Westrick, warden; Louis J. Gerstmeier, recorder; George H. Stuhldreher, treasurer; Ray E. Hecht, advocate; John Shill, inside guard; Joseph Schwartz, outside guard; and Anton Moritz, trustee for a three-year term.

This marks the 28th consecutive year that Stuhldreher was elected treasurer of the Mansfield council.

MANSFIELD GIRL SCOUTS HOLD OUTDOOR RALLY TOMORROW

First outdoor rally for Girl Scouts of Mansfield will be held tomorrow at South Park from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. with the morning given over to Scout ceremonies and the afternoon to games and athletics. Parents of the girls have been invited to attend the morning program.

The morning program will open with group singing and a formal flag ceremony, and first class badges and five-year service stripes will be presented to Girl Scouts who have earned them by Mrs. Roger A. Black, commissioner of the Girl Scout council.

Girls who will receive their first class badges at this time include: Dorothy Arlin, Jane Gibbs, Betty Pugh, Elaine Guiler, Constance Roelof, Marilyn Larson, Dorothy Gump, Elaine Sellers, Ruth Weston, Margaret Gage, Lila Cutting, Patricia Hieber, Carol Hosler, Kathryn Ann Fensch, Ruth Ann Wolf, Margaret Bohr, Anna Marie Fischer, Lucy Davis, Helen Buchanan, Louise Turner, Jeanne Brook, Ann Gilbert, Barbara Shively, Jean Wentz, Marjorie Wentz, Betty Smart and Carol Ann Spencer.

Five-year service stripes will be given to: Marjorie Hegnauer, Miriam Hoff, Betsy Cave, Margaret Gage, Catherine Lanner, Anne Wilson and Maxine Hartman.

Following the presentation of the awards, each troop will put on a five minute demonstration illustrating phases of the Girl Scout program. Girls will eat their lunch in the park and after lunch will participate in various activities including folk dancing, games, baseball and a treasure hunt.

The committee in charge of the rally is composed of: Mrs. Roscoe Gage, chairman; Mrs. Robert Bell, Mrs. Robert R. Black, Mrs. G. V. Smith, Mrs. I. E. Cutting, Miss Kathryn Pfeifer, and Mrs. P. C. Davis. Those in charge of the activity groups are: Mrs. Tom Ford, baseball; Mrs. L. J. Ott, treasure hunt; Miss Carolyn Wolf, games; and Eleanor Bond, folk dancing.

In the event of rain, the rally will be postponed until Tuesday.

Clerk Receives 19 Applications For Citizenship

Nineteen foreign-born Mansfielders filed applications for citizenship papers today with Clerk of Courts Fred R. Zellner in preparation for the semi-annual naturalization examination set for Oct. 2.

Assisting the applicants today were A. E. Weatherbee, Youngstown, federal naturalization examiner, and Norman P. Henry, deputy clerk of courts.

Henry said petitions will be accepted until about July 1 for the fall class. Each applicant must list two character witnesses when he files his petition. Applicants may attend a free naturalization school at the courthouse preceding the final examination.

WOMAN HURT IN TRAFFIC CRASH

Mrs. Bertha Cummins, 42, of Beechwood, Ky., was admitted to General hospital this morning with injuries suffered in an automobile-truck collision at 10 a. m. at Beechwood and Lexington roads in South Boulevard.

According to highway patrolmen, Mrs. Cummins suffered body injuries when an auto driven by her husband, Maurice T. Cummins, 40, collided with a truck driven by Philip Dupre, 62, of 81 North Weldon avenue.

Also in the Cummins car was Maurice Cummins, Jr., 2, who was not injured. Dupre also escaped injuries, officers said.

MANSFIELDERS AMONG GRADS GETTING DIPLOMAS THIS WEEK

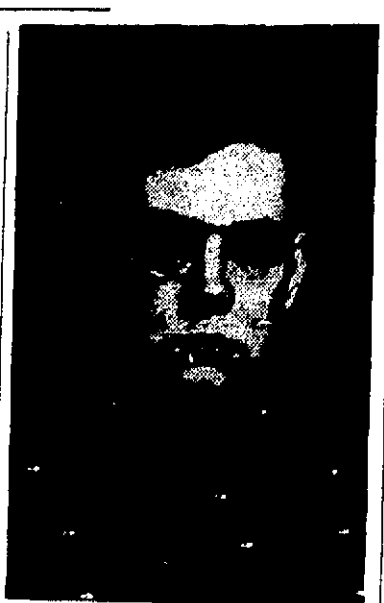

Four Mansfield boys are among hundreds of graduates turned out this week at colleges and schools throughout the country.

Don Finefrock and Harold P. Fleck received diplomas from the Kentucky Military Institute at Louisville when the school held its 95th commencement on Wednesday. Earl P. Strong, 95 Stewart avenue, was one of almost 5,000 graduates from New York University yesterday, which was the largest class in the school's history. F. Lionel Culp, 386 Marion avenue, will receive his degree of Bachelor of Arts when Heidelberg college holds its 87th annual commencement Monday at Tiffin.

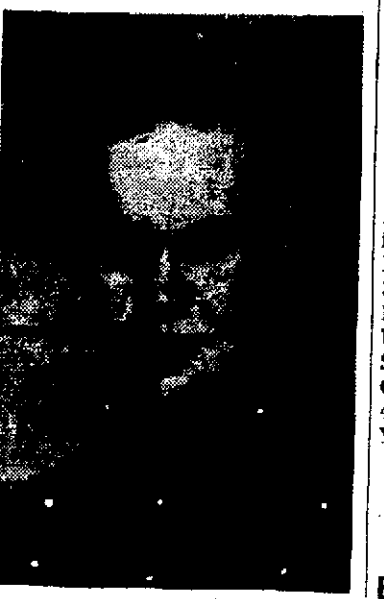

Finefrock, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Finefrock, Park avenue west, was awarded the Distinguished Military bar with his diploma at the Kentucky military preparatory school, Young Fleck, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Fleck, R. D. 6, completed a commercial course. He was chapel reader and a member of the rifle team. Both boys were active in college athletics.

Strong was given an "honorable mention" rating in the highest scholarship contest in the retail personnel management course at the New York institution.

Culp, son of Attorney and Mrs. Frank Culp, has majored in political science and business administration. He plans to enter Western Reserve university in the fall to study law.

TWO BANDITS BELIEVED SHOT

Hospitals Checked by Highway Patrol in Search for Bank Robbers.

(By United Press) COLUMBUS.—The state highway patrol and Columbus police checked hospitals and local police in central Ohio today in search of four bandits who robbed a branch bank in suburban Bexley of $3,500 and then slipped through a police car blockade.

At least one and possibly two of the robbers were believed wounded in their hurried departure from the bank during which Police Chief R. A. Hammar of Bexley fired eight shots at them.

The bandit car executed a U-turn in speeding away from the bank and one of the gunmen was forced to jump on the running board to go along.

Hammar said he believed one of his bullets struck the bandit who hung on the car. Hammar was driving past the bank in a new squad car while the holdup was in progress but was unable to give chase.

State highway patrol and Columbus city police cars were summoned and threw up a blockade in the neighborhood but the bandit car escaped. A hitch-hiker on the Canal Winchester pike said he saw a car speed past him with two men in the rear seat covered with blood.

OHIO SCHOOLS AID IN PILOT PREPARATION

Knox Announces Facilities For Training of 2,925 Young Aviators.

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO.—Col. Frank Knox, national chairman of Aviation Plattsburg, announced today facilities had been set up in the middle west to train 2,925 young men in primary flying beginning June 15.

Instructors and equipment were ready, he said, at 90 universities and colleges and he urged men wishing to get flight training to apply at these schools.

The middle west facilities form part of a program to train 45,000 air pilots throughout the country during the next year. A congressional appropriation provides for about $125 for board and room for the students during the first 10 weeks of schooling.

Ohio schools where students may register, with quotas for each institution, follow: Baldwin Wallace 15; Capital 15; Case 45; Fenn 30; Kent State 60; Kenyon 15; Lake Erie 15; Marietta 15; Mount Union 30; Ohio Northern 30; Ohio State 75; Ohio U. 45; Akron 45; Cincinnati 75; Dayton 30; Toledo 45; Wittenberg 15; Xavier 30; Youngstown 30.

Graduate Three With Ceremony At Country Day

Graduation exercises were held yesterday at Country Day school for Sherry Carr, George Gernhardt and Verna Beth Graham who were graduated from the sixth grade, and participated in a program presented at the school on Elymmer avenue before a group of friends and relatives. Mrs. Vivian Haynes, director of the school, was in charge.

James Draffan opened the morning exercises with a piano solo, followed by the primary grades singing. George Gernhardt gave the class history, and Sherry Carr read the class will. Verna Beth Graham read the class prophecy and presented the American flag to the lower grades. Susan Stoodt accepted for the school.

The three graduates then sang the class song, an original composition and the upper grades concluded the program with a song. The members of the graduating class presented Mrs. Haynes with a book and following the annual custom Mrs. Haynes gave the three graduates memory books. The singing of "God Bless America" by the entire audience and the student body followed the presentation of the flag, and the students concluded with the singing of the school song.

Re-Elect Officers At Session of General Aid

Officers of the General Aid of the First Methodist church were re-elected to serve for another year yesterday during a quarterly meeting at the church. They are: Mrs. C. A. Crawford, president; Mrs. D. L. Divilbiss, financial secretary; Mrs. G. H. Laubschlag, treasurer; and Mrs. G. W. Griswold, secretary.

Mrs. Paul Early led the devotions, and Mrs. Crawford conducted the business session, at which time aid work of the six circles was reported. Mrs. F. M. Frizell gave a report of the nominating committee. There will not be another Aid meeting until Aug. 1, when a covered-dish dinner will be held.

Club Gives Breakfast Feting Miss Zelenka

Members of the H. U. T. club entertained for Miss Ruth Zelenka, who will become the bride of R. Wayne Sutton on June 29, with a breakfast party this morning at the Susie Janis home. There were 12 members and one guest, Mrs. Emil Zelenka, mother of the bride-elect, present.

The long table was decorated with garden flowers. Each place was marked with a tiny bride and a miniature candle holder. The club members presented Miss Zelenka with an electrical gift.

30 ATTEND. There were 30 present at the outdoor dessert-bridge party of the Colony club yesterday when Mrs. I. D. Wallington. Wellington avenue entertained. Prizes were won by Mrs. C. C. Activities of Social Clubs

MRS. HAROLD STICKROD entertained members of the Get-Together club last evening at her home, 16 Jeannette avenue. Prizes in games were awarded to Mrs. Walter Manley, Mrs. James Elliott and Mrs. Emma Wilson. The hostess served refreshments at the close of the evening. The meeting of June 20 will be with Mrs. Robert Hagg on Concord avenue.

Mrs. Joseph Kunz and Mrs. Philip Wontz were guests of the Learn-A-Stitch club yesterday afternoon

Regular Session Held by Groups Of First Church

Both the home and the foreign missionary societies of the First Methodist church were in session yesterday in the Sunday school rooms. Mrs. R. W. James was in charge of the home meeting, and gave a paper entitled "A Home Message." Mrs. Anna Rice conducted the foreign session.

Mrs. W. P. Close led the devotions on the subject "The Word and the Way." Mrs. C. L. Lisle conducted the mite box opening for the foreign society, and gave the message, "Stewardship In The Philippines." The paper prepared by Mrs. J. S. Shook and read by Mrs. Charles Ray. Miss Rose Cherry also gave a paper. Several chapters of the study book, "The Women and the Way," dealing with the Philippines, North and South America, were given by Mrs. D. W. Allen, Mrs. F. E. Rudd was in charge of the serving of supper. The next meeting will be held July 11.

Final Plans Complete For Joint Meeting

Final plans for a joint meeting of Beta Kappa Tau sorority and Phalanx fraternity were formulated yesterday evening when members of the sorority met in the club rooms on Park avenue west. This joint session will be held at the club rooms on June 13.

Miss Pauline Folmer conducted the business, at which time it was decided that the sorority will have a combined business and social meeting once during each of the summer months. New members were given their secret pals at this time. The next scheduled meeting will be on June 20 in the club rooms.

Formal Initiation Held For New Pledges

Formal initiation of the Misses Kay Glessner, Mary Thompson, Vera Jo Robertson, Martha Bueser, Betty Sharp and Doris Betz, was conducted last night when member of Zeta Rho chapter, Delta Theta Tau entertained at the home of Miss Bette Anderson, Davis road.

A dessert course was served buffet style. Ice cream molds in the form of white roses, the sorority flower, were served, and each new member was presented with a single white rose. The newly accepted pledges were also presented with gifts by their big sisters. The next meeting will be held June 17 with the place to be announced later.

Garden Clubs Have Joint Luncheon; Mrs. Biddle Talks

Members of all the garden clubs in the city were in attendance at the joint luncheon meeting held at the Westbrook Country club at 1 o'clock yesterday. Mrs. Dorothy Biddle, New York, spoke on flower arrangements, and displayed a number of arrangements for the home.

The luncheon meeting was in charge of the Astowela club. The club house was decorated throughout with flowers and centerpieces were used on the long tables at which 130 were seated.

Regular meetings of the organizations will be resumed June 21. The Astowela club will have a flower show with Mrs. York Dirlam and Mrs. P. J. Kelly as hostesses. The Cottage members will also have a show with Mrs. Stanley Richardson and Mrs. I. L. Bronson as hostesses.

The Town and Country club will meet with Mrs. Eugene Smart, and Mrs. William Weldon, Jr., will be hostess to the Johnny Appleseed club when the members have a flower show, while Mrs. Ephraim Brown and Mrs. Milton Doolittle entertain the Mansfield club.

Early Graduating Class Celebrates At Dinner Party

Tonight marks the 45th anniversary of the graduation of the class of the John Simpson high school, and in celebration of the anniversary those members who are in the Mansfield vicinity, with their husbands, are having a dinner party at the Susie Janis home at 6:30 p. m. Guests of honor will be Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Lyon, Marjetta, and Miss Bertha Ruess. Both Mr. Lyon and Miss Ruess were teachers of the class.

Communications have been received from graduates of the class now in California, Florida and Louisiana. The original class had 27 members, and eight from this vicinity will attend tonight.

Mrs. Arlene Campbell of Cleveland, and Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Oberlin from Hammond, Ind., will be among the guests. Both Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. Oberlin were members of the group, which was the third graduating class of the school.

Hospital Alumnae Plan Dinner-Dance Tonight

Members of the Mansfield General Hospital Nurses Alumnae association will entertain at 7:45 p. m. today with a dinner-dance honoring the 1940 class of graduates. SEWING OCCUPIES MEMBERS OF CIRCLES

Study of Bible Characters, Paper on Consumer Movement Featured By Several Groups of First Presbyterian Church.

CIRCLES of the First Presbyterian church conducted regular business meetings yesterday afternoon at the homes of various members. Mrs. George Ingram, 22 Augustine avenue, was hostess to members of Circle Two. She was assisted by Mrs. H. H. Carter and Mrs. William Gifford. The latter poured.

The afternoon was spent in sewing for the hospital. Plans were made to hold a covered-dish picnic July 11 at South park at 12:30 p. m.

Devotions were led by Mrs. Richard Olin yesterday when Mrs. C. Collins entertained Circle Five at her home on Mapledale avenue. Mrs. Hamilton Patton and Mrs. J. W. Powers were the associates. The afternoon was spent in sewing for the Service league. There will be no July meeting, it was announced, but the group will resume activities with an all day session at the Red Cross sewing rooms on Aug. 1.

The study of Bible characters was continued by members of Circle One when Miss Carol Cockrell entertained at the church yesterday. Mrs. W. H. Goodenough was in charge of the meeting, and Mrs. Flora Lewis led the devotions including a story entitled "Guerdon of Naomi."

Mrs. J. L. Zimmerman gave a characterization of Hannah. Miss Betty Mowrey played "Les Secrets," "The Waltzing Doll" and "Dixie Rondo" at the piano. Mrs. Elizabeth Smythe, assisted by Miss Vera Smythe, 469 Marion avenue, will entertain July 11.

A paper on "Consumer Research" was given by Mrs. M. L. Smith at the meeting of Circle Three with Mrs. Edwin Balyeat, Jr., 32 Rowland avenue. Mrs. Edwin Balyeat, sr., and Mrs. F. F. Dillon assisted. Guests present included Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Kelvin Trenner and Mrs. C. D. Chapman of Cleveland. Refreshments were served. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. B. L. Chase, Carpenter road, July 11.

Informally Speaking...

By MARIANNE

JUNE GRADUATES are headlining the day's news, and Mansfielders are receiving diplomas from various colleges and universities. . . . On Wednesday, Jane Kelley daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Kelley) was graduated from Marygrove college at Detroit, Mich., in the 30th annual commencement exercises. . . . Jane majored in home economics while attending the school and was an active member of the So-Bears club. . . . A luncheon, garden party, buffet supper and serenade of college songs were all features of this week for the 69 graduates.

Margaret Twitchell is now a graduate of the Cleveland School of Art, having received her diploma this week. . . . Margaret, who specialized in portraits, was presented with an honorary post-graduate scholarship in view of her outstanding work. . . . She is here for the summer, vacationing with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Twitchell.

HISTORIC Rosse hall on the Kenyon college campus at Gambier will be the scene of the 112th commencement of the college next Monday, and a Mansfielder, Charles McKinley, will receive his A. B. degree. . . . Charles, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. McKinley, has been the editor of the Hika, college magazine, and a staff member of the Collegian, college weekly paper. . . . He also has been an active member of the Nu Pi Kappa society, the dramatic club, the choir, the International Relations club and the photography club. . . . And that's not all either—Charles is a merit man at Kenyon, the oldest college for men west of the Alleghenies.

Helen Bayer has returned to her home on Davis road to spend the summer with her father, Atty. Joseph A. Bayer. . . . Helen, you know, is a student at Ohio Wesleyan university in Delaware, and she's just completed her sophomore year there.

THIS is an important and busy week for Frances Brown, as she's gone to Annapolis, Md., where she attended the annual spring formal at the U. S. Naval academy as the guest of a Mansfield midshipman there—John Gano. . . . Before returning home on Sunday, Frances is going sight-seeing in Washington, D. C.

Four University of Dayton students arrived in town this week to spend the summer months with their parents. . . . Robert Jurgens, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Jurgens, and Martin Moritz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moritz, who are enrolled in the college of business administration, are home again—as are Harold Raybould, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Raybould, sr., and Harold Reindl, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reindl. . . . The latter two young men are chemical engineering students at the university.

FROM Mansfield to Wittenberg college to San Francisco to Yale university tells the success story geographically of George C. Izenour, who recently received a Rockefeller Foundation grant of $19,500 for two years' research into the application of console control of stage lighting. . . . Izenour was an instructor in dramatics and public speaking at Wittenberg for two years following his graduation there in 1934. . . . Then in 1936 he received his master's degree from the college for research regarding mobile color and synchronized light in its relation to the modern theater. . . . In San Francisco, he constructed the $100,000 light organ in the Federal building for the San Francisco fair—and it was this work with a master's thesis which won for Izenour an appointment of research fellow at the foundation with laboratory facilities in Radio City. . . . During the past year, he has been working at the Yale university drama department, and now using the university theater there, Izenour hopes to develop a low cost lighting console for use in small theaters. . . . Incidentally, if his experiments are successful, the compact console will replace the bulky and complicated rheostats which are now used in all but a few of the largest auditoriums. . . . So it really goes without saying that we're all mighty proud of this native Mansfield son.

ALL of their Mansfield friends will be pleased to know that Mr. and Mrs. Willard C. Ness of Shelby are the proud parents of a baby daughter, born this week. . . . Mrs. Ness was Audrey Cunningham of this city before her marriage, you know—and she and her husband have named the baby Karen Louise.

ENTERTAINS CLUB. Mrs. Mary Chelski, Lida street, was hostess last night to all members of the Cotton Jugglers club. Sewing was the diversion of the evening, and refreshments were served. The next meeting will be held June 20 with Mrs. Mary Swetlick, 536 North Mulberry street.

Mrs. Charles Meehan, Mrs. C. H. Sanborn, Mrs. Fred Marlow, Mrs. Charles Smith and children, Ida Joan, Jimmie, and Beth Ann, were all the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Waite, Chesterville, yesterday.

With the new spring frocks, elbows come out of their hiding, and how disappointing it is to see rough patches where the skin should be smooth and clear! Soap and water and a nail brush work wonders on calloused elbows. Scrub them whenever you bathe and always at night before bedtime. Then rub in a little cream and your natural smoothness will soon return.

Why Love? They're Made That Way

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Many worthy citizens must have joined me in a hearty laugh the other morning when we read of the findings of a certain university. Assembled in solemn conclave, the university gravely discussed "Why Does Boy Love Girl?" or, contrariwise, "Why Does Girl Love Boy?"

Why didn't the learned professors turn their attentions to such riddles as "Why does a duck swim?" Or why do we eat when we are hungry? Or cease to breathe when we are shut up without air?

As boy has been loving girl ever since Eve persuaded Adam to rob the apple orchard, it's as plain as the nose on your face why boy loves girl, and girl loves boy—they're made that way.

Still these worthy professors have done their bit in the particular university, which shall be nameless, where the discussion was held and the case histories of 300 engaged couples studied, "most of whom have since married" and submitted to psychological tests concerning that grand old enigma under discussion.

Let's see what the professors have got to say about it and how it applies to our young friends Jim and Mamie. After being submitted to a battery of psychologists and calling in their friends for questioning, the professors arrived at the following facts:

It seems that "opposites", in spite of all that has been said, do not attract. If a boy is dull in his class work, he prefers a dull girl. That seems self-evident to us, so why put on cap and gown to discuss the truism that men do not care for the society of girls who make them feel inferior. Hence all the urging of this column for girls to learn how to be good listeners.

The professors traced the careers of 307 individuals who, in their school-days, were judged to be below average in intelligence. It was found that these persons didn't fare very well when it came to getting jobs, another self-evident truth which the rest of us have noted without having to don cap and gown.

But to return to the basic question, one doesn't have to take a Ph. D. to arrive at the solution. Girls and boys have loved each other and will continue to love each other as long as anything is left of this sorry old world with its "blitzkrieg" invasion of peaceful nations, where homes are wrecked and young men done to death.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, June 3

An unusual set of circumstances and events may contribute to make this an interesting and successful day. New as well as unique or peculiar interests may claim the attention, and with a degree of success, although an indulgence in recklessness, impatient and impulsive conduct may offset or undermine the most progressive efforts and original plans. More constructive may be the support of superiors or the interest of large corporations or even political or fraternal bodies. Social and affectional affiliations flourish.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for an unusual or strange turn of events, with much success and progress arising from change, innovations or unorthodox methods or ideas. But these might be jeopardized by indulgence, in rash, hasty or impetuous moves or too strenuous attack. Confer with superiors or with those powerful in lodges, politics or secret organizations. Kindred subtleties and activities may be expected in social or emotional life.

A child born on this day should be energetic, enterprising, original and creative in out-of-ordinary lines, perhaps in artistic, intellectual or dramatic composition. While bold and audacious it may be subtle, mysterious and have much intuition and imagination.

PALE PORTIONS SHOW WHERE LEAF-MINER HAS "MINED"

ARBORVITAE LEAF-MINER

If the tips of the arborvitae evergreens turn whitish or brown in color you can very likely solve the mystery by suspecting the leaf-miner of being the culprit. This insect winters over in the "mined" portions of the foliage, and in May emerges as a moth. This moth lays its eggs and after they hatch the larvae enter the foliage by tunneling in between the tissues of the leaves. The pale portions of the tips of arborvitae, pictured in the accompanying illustration, show the effects of the injury caused by the "mining" operations of the leaf-miner. These injured twig tips may be found throughout all parts of the arborvitae.

One method of control is to cut off and burn the damaged tips. Infestations of the leaf-miner may also be checked by spraying the plants in July with a solution of nicotine and arsenate of lead.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Luncheon proved to be rather a tense affair, although Lillian and Harry Underwood, with Dicky, did their best—and their best is very good indeed—to keep the conversational ball rolling in the lighter strata of emotional ether. But though Philip Veritzen and Queen Olga are too poised to betray their real feelings, they said very little. While Noel, Mary and Olina did not "play up" as well as they usually do in social emergencies.

As for me, I was too distraught for either food or conversation, but I made a desperate pretense at eating the first and joining in the second. But I fear my nibblings and chatter were unconvincing, and I was glad indeed when Katie's really delicious luncheon—to which, despite their disturbed emotions, most of them did ample justice—came to an end.

It so happened that those of us whom Philip Veritzen had said he wished to see in the library were the only ones, save Olga and Olina, at the luncheon table. In order to keep the children as much as possible from the lower floor, Katherine ate in the nursery with them, while Miss Whitlock engineered trays for my father, my mother-in-law, for Edith Fairfax and for herself.

Queen Olga Objects.
Thus it was that when Mr. Veritzen rose from the table, he had his library audience ready, for he lost no time in announcing that Olina and her mother were to be members of the conference. "Will it be convenient for all of you to come to the library now?" he asked. "I suppose," he added, "that Mrs. Graham has acquainted you with my wish to see you for an explanation and some questions, and I already have asked Queen Olga and her daughter to come with us."

The exiled queen of Transylvania gave him a reproachful look, softened by a mirthful smile.

"Please, Philip," she said, "don't call me that again." He looked at her with an expression that was as near an embarrassed one as I ever had seen him wear. Harry Underwood, who has no awe in his soul for royalty in fact or in the theater, and who has known Philip Veritzen for many years, chuckled audibly.

"Don't worry, Phil," he said. "In a few weeks you can refer to her as 'the missus' and all your troubles will be over."

The great impresario started to frown, but he unknitted his brows again as Olga laughed merrily. "I am looking forward to that," she said mischievously, and Philip Veritzen smiled fatuously at her. "Shall we lead the way back to the library?" he said, bowing to her and offering her his arm in courtly fashion.

"I am honored," she told him merrily, as she took his arm and turned with him toward the door. With the gravest of faces below impishly dancing eyes, Harry Underwood and Dicky bowed and offered their arms to Lillian and me, and we swung in behind them. I heard a surprised giggle from Mary, and a following one from

"The Authority on Authorities"

CONSIDER THEIR SKILL

Whether to double your opponents or sacrifice against them depends on many factors. If it seems like a close question otherwise, your estimate of their skill and accuracy as bidders may often be the deciding element. When an extremely smooth pair gets to a high vulnerable contract and your partner passes a chance to double them, the chances are he thinks they can make the contract. Your job, then, unless you have some unexpectedly well-positioned defensive values, is to measure the cost of a sacrifice and if it is not too much, pay the price.

Olina, and was glad the girl realized that her future stepfather and not her mother was the subject of her really innocent and kindly mirth.

"Noel, you're in luck! Harry Underwood drawled. "We hain't got but one woman apiece, while you draw down two."

"I am deeply aware of my good fortune," Noel said, laughing as he brought up the rear of our absurd little procession with his wife and Olina on either arm.

When we reached the library, Mr. Veritzen seated us all ceremoniously in a semi-circle facing him. He did not sit down himself, and as he let his gaze rest upon each of us for a fleeting instant, I suddenly had the sense of something portentous in the air. (Continued tomorrow).

South estimated, and quite soundly, that there was a pronounced distributional situation for East and West, also that this was why North did not double the 5-Spade bid, fearing some of his honor cards, on which he based a shaded informative double, would be ruffed. Ordinarily the best kind of suit-playing distribution is that in which the declarer's side has a fine fit in the trump suit and complete misfits of two side suits. That is just what East and West had shown to South.

It was clear to South from the bidding that both vulnerable opponents had good spades, also that East had length in hearts and West in clubs. There could not be many diamonds in either hand.

Hence they should be able to make their contract, which they could. His sacrifice therefore saved a number of points, as he played the hand so as to go down only two tricks, losing one in clubs, one to the diamond A and one to a ruff of hearts by West.

CHAPTER XXX

Tomorrow will come too soon... The day was quickly spent—to the small white house for luncheon where she met five scantily-clad, sunburned children before they went protesting to their naps; an hour on the court opposite Julian who played as ruthlessly as she believed he would argue a case in court; a second swim; cool drinks on the veranda again; dinner served by the trim little maid. Then she and Julian walked back not through the deserted street but over the sand. . . . Brooke did not want Julian to speak, she thought, as she walked beside him on the sand. Nor did she want a beautiful setting to culminate in a falsely romantic scene, false on his part, overwhelmingly real on hers, she thought.

What was she to him? But she did not want to know that quite yet, preferring to live alone with that which was tender and wholly hers. An exquisite secret, this new and happy love for Julian. . . . He asked, "When would you like to go to Chatham tomorrow—if you must go back?" "After a swim," Brooke said. Then, "I could go back by train. It's needless, your driving that distance."

"Of course, I'll drive you back."

"It's been fun, and meeting a really happy family has been a joy."

"You'll have to meet Paul to see the complete setting."

"But you aren't staying your entire three weeks here, are you?"

He shook his head. "No, I'm going farther north to join a party. Barney's party, by the way, is the third Saturday in August. You have a date with me."

By then would she know? By then would Rod have become as dim and as unimportant as people she passed on the streets of New York?

Her voice was quiet. "The last time I went to one of Barney's parties I thought that every one there was my enemy."

"It was you, not they."

"I know that now."

They had reached the large white cottage. He did not linger. She saw him go back by way of the beach. With what thoughts, she wondered, her eyes following him. . . . In the morning, after a prolonged farewell from Wilma and her children, Brooke slid into the seat beside Julian, her happy mood sustained even to the moment he left her on the veranda of the house in Chatham, a house still locked and gloomy. For Helen and her father did not return until late that afternoon, the former shrilly ecstatic that Brooke had not been alone, the latter too hungry to give her more than a cool peck on the cheek and inquire after her health.

"Grace isn't home," Helen said later as Brooke helped with the dinner.

"I don't know where she went but she went away in her new car with Mrs. Jellicott. She won't say anything about Rod but everybody knows where the money is coming from."

Brooke said, "I think Grace would rather see Rod occasionally than have the money."

"You haven't told us about your new position, Brooke. Weren't you lucky?" Then, "The remodeling on the house will start in a few weeks so that the apartment upstairs will be ready for occupancy in the fall. I do hope we can get a nice couple and no children."

Since Brooke dreaded the heat and there was neither pleasure nor interest in working for the personable Wilson Stone, Brooke did not regret the slow uneventful days that ultimately brought her brief holiday to an end, knowing that for all the years to come she would be no more than a visitor in her father's home. It was a fact she accepted rather cheerfully now.

But nothing made her unhappy these days, not even this long separation from Julian, knowing that they would meet again. It was as if her passionate love for Rod, her tenderness for Tony, her friendship with Jim, all the best of her feelings for the three, had merged in her feelings for Julian.

And Rod? She would be lying, she knew, no matter how firmly she might tell herself that he had been wholly forgotten.

Merciful rain was falling when she came into New York on Sunday evening, feeling distinctly glad to be back. The little room cooled by the rain, seemed to welcome her. Had she come to the end of despair and self-pity? Energetically she went about unpacking, thinking of tomorrow. She had come to the end of hating stand, Brooke accepted her happiness and the strange contentment of hot August nights. Julian would return . . . though she was in no hurry for his return. Odd that her love did not demand his presence, that it was a patient love. It was as if by waiting she sensed its growth and strengthening.

But what if she should come face to face with Rod, feel the memories of years rushing about her? This thought was always short-lived: thought of Julian made her feel safe and untroubled again. She had loved Rod and her love had demanded his presence. She had had a gay and delightful companionship with the immature Tony. But with Julian it was enough for the present to think of him and remember him and love him without gestures or words.

One evening at dinner Margot suggested that she and Brooke take a small apartment together in the autumn.

"Because, of course, I'm going to stay," Margot said in her rich contralto tones. "And I could probably beg enough furniture from my aunt to furnish an apartment very comfortably. And I promise not to drive you mad with my vocal exercises. Think about it, Brooke. Think of the luxury of a private bath and a kitchen to putter around in."

Brooke said, "I've been considering it but I wouldn't possibly do it alone on my salary."

"It's a tentative agreement, then? Fine! My aunt will feel so much better about my being here. To her it's positively barbaric when you can't hang your own curtains." She went on. "I'm afraid we're hopelessly small-town, Brooke. Why was I ever bitten with the dramatic bug? It's a curse. I could live a divinely lazy life with my aunt and marry a solid citizen and continue to be divinely lazy. Instead, I'm living on a pitifully small inheritance, walking around with a book on my head trying to spread with a broad . . . It's worth it?"

500 SCOUTS TO SET UP CAMP IN CITY NEXT WEEK

Annual Camporall Gets Under Way Next Thursday, Ends Saturday Morning.

Some 500 Boy Scouts from the Johnny Appleseed area are expected here next week-end to attend the annual area Camporall to be held at Liberty park.

The event will open Thursday evening, June 13, and continue through June 15, with troop No. 4 at Newman school and Rover Crew No. 4 acting as host troops.

The park will be transformed into a tented city, as the scouts and their leaders will camp there Thursday night. The opening night's program will include a song fest and motion pictures of scouting activities.

Friday's program will consist of games and demonstrations. First round of a kittenball tournament will be played off in the morning with the finals scheduled for Friday afternoon.

In the evening, a program of scouting demonstrations will be held, and annual presentation of the Hillier trophy and President's cup will be made. The Hillier trophy is presented to the troop in the area making the greatest number of advancements during the year, and the President's cup goes to the troop registering the largest number of new scouts in a year.

A feature of the Friday program will be a concert in the evening by the Senior high school band under the direction of J. Merton Holcombe.

The scouts will break camp Saturday morning. Nearly every troop in the area is expected to be represented.

SUES DENTIST FOR DAMAGES

Woman Says Infection Resulted From Dental Work.

A $5,120 personal damage suit had been filed in common pleas court today against Dr. B. W. Stern, Mansfield dentist, by Mrs. Lucy Denoro, 76 Orchard street.

Mrs. Denoro charges she suffered from an infected tooth which, she contends, resulted from dental work performed by Dr. Stern.

In her petition, filed by Atty. George W. Biddle, she states that a part of the root of a tooth was left in the gum, making it impossible for her to wear false teeth and resulting in the infection which brought on illness.

ELKS TO ATTEND HARDING RITES

Manfield Lodge Delegation to Form Part of Pilgrimage to Marion Memorial.

Several members of the Mansfield lodge of Elks are expected to go to Marion Sunday to attend a pilgrimage to the Harding Memorial, in honor of Warren G. Harding, 29th president and former member of the Elks lodge.

The pilgrimage is being sponsored by Marion Lodge No. 32, B. P. O. E. and the Ohio Elks' association and is expected to attract Elks from throughout the state.

B. B. Kuhn, secretary of the Mansfield lodge, will head the local delegation.

Representative Thomas A. Jenkins of Ironton is scheduled to give the principal address, and C. A. Lais, president of the Ohio Elks' association will place a wreath at the tomb.

A parade, scheduled to get underway at 1:30 p. m., will open the ceremonies.

State Shifts 4 Counties Forming Welfare District

A state-wide revision of the Ohio division of public assistance set-up today and reduced District 8, in which Richland county is located, from 10 to six counties.

Mrs. Marion Brucker of Shelby will continue as supervisor in the district, handling the administration of the division of aid to the blind and aid to dependent children. Mrs. Katherine McMichael, Mansfield, is Richland county supervisor. Her office is in the courthouse.

District 8 now includes Richland, Ashland, Crawford, Huron, Lorain and Seneca counties.

State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood said the re-districting and combination of the field staffs will save an estimated $20,000 a year in traveling expenses for supervisors. It will also be possible for the supervisors to give more attention to individual cases, he added.

'HELP OTHERS,' 302 GRADS TOLD

Commencement Speaker Tells Them to Steer Clear of World Mad With War.

It was no beautiful world of opportunity that Dr. Wildman pictured for the graduates, but one filled with fear, suspicion, and irritation.

"What you see in Europe is not the goal for which man was intended. For that reason you must learn to steer a straight course and know how to get along with other people and nations to stay out of the confusion," he asserted.

"The time will come when we will change the law of the jungle for the law of Jesus and try to achieve by helping others, not by treading on them. There is always something awesome about an outstretched hand."

The fundamental cornerstones of character are self respect, respect for others, self control, and cooperation, Dr. Wildman told the graduates.

"The foundation of your life must be built on solid rock, not on sand. If the superstructure is going to stand," he said, "The higher you go with the superstructure, the deeper you must go for a foundation. Too many of us today are building superficially, not on the basis of character and national life."

Emphasizing respect for others as important to the well-balanced character, Dr. Wildman cautioned the graduates to "listen closely to others to learn something new."

"Don't criticize the other fellow because he hasn't had the chance you've had. You can learn even from the ditch-digger," he said.

In his salutation, Steve Karnavas, president of the graduating class, warned his classmates that "you are on your own now. You may not always have your best friend around to fall back on. What you do with the college you've received here is up to you."

Jesse Beer, Senior high school principal, presented the class for graduation and called the names of the graduates as they filed past Dr. John S. Hattery, vice president of the board of education, to receive their diplomas.

The high school orchestra, directed by S. K. Jorgensen, played while the gray-clad seniors marched six abreast to their seats in front of the west stands of the stadium and again when they filed out.

The musical part of the program included the class song which was sung by Betty Austin and Richard Wright, members of the class, and the popular number, "God Bless America," played by the orchestra.

William Houston, a graduate and composer of the class song, played the accompaniment for the duet of singers.

Supt. of Schools W. L. Miller introduced Dr. Wildman. The invocation and benediction were given by Rev. Howard W. Peterson, superintendent of the Mansfield district of the Methodist church.

The class, third largest in the history of the Mansfield schools, included 160 boys and 142 girls.

Roosevelt Expected to Rush Adjournment of Congress

DEFENSE TAX BILL RAISES
BIG OBSTACLEAction Deferred on War-Time Draft of Capital By Author of Bill.(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON — Administration lieutenants on Capitol Hill expressed belief today that President Roosevelt would take active steps to hasten his legislative program and bring about congressional adjournment in two weeks.The president, they said, is aware that the defense tax bill constitutes the greatest obstacle to a prompt windup of the session.
Seeking to head off time-consuming amendments to this legislation, the chief executive was reported by Senator Lee (D-Okla.) to be opposed to submission this summer of Lee's plan to draft private capital in wartime.Because of Mr. Roosevelt's stand, Lee said he would not seek action on his proposal.
Other senators said the president might suggest that further controversial financial programs should be withheld until the next session.The house neared the end of debate on amendments to the Wagner labor act, with both sides agreeing that a restatement of the position of the American Federation of Labor would increase greatly the chances of approving major revisions.President William Green of the AFL sent a letter to Rep. Smith (D-Va.) which said that "taken as a whole," the 17 amendments sponsored by Smith's investigating committee would help remedy what he called "excesses and abuses" of the national labor board. But he expressed opposition to four of the proposals.A majority of Smith's committee has proposed creation of a new, three-man labor board, separation of its administrative and judicial functions, and establishment of certain safeguards for craft unions and employers.The house labor committee recommended only four changes, one of which would add two members to the present three-man agency.Green expressed opposition to Smith committee amendments to redefine the purposes of the act and the definition of collective bargaining, to limit back pay awards to six months, and to require the labor board to disregard cases where there was a conflict between unions over which should represent workers.The CIO has opposed all the Smith revisions.Couple Hollywood
Character Actors
Claimed by DeathHOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Hollywood and the world of the theater today had lost two of its favorites, Florence Roberts, 79-year-old character actress who died in her sleep, and Edward E. Clive, 60, famed for his portrayal of fluent cockneys and harpumpers peers, who succumbed to a heart attack.Miss Roberts, a trouper for more than half a century, was found in her bedroom by her companion, Alice Manners.
Death was believed due to a heart ailment.Clive, a native of Monmouthshire, Wales, collapsed of a heart attack as he lay in bed drinking his morning cup of tea.

Hammer Slaying Trial Defense Opened

Up and Down
THE STREETAn out of town motorist apparently figured that he had enough trouble when he locked himself in his hotel room yesterday and called police headquarters to be sure that he wouldn't get stuck with a summons for overtime parking. Unable to get his door unlocked he called Patrolman Howard Schuck and gave him the location and license number of his machine and explained his plight.A company of three transient street entertainers put on a show on West Third street today that was reminiscent of the old days in England when musicians, actors, and speakers could make a fair living going from town to town with their acts. The group here today included two acordion players and a clarinetist who made good music. They enlivened their program with a little comedy, and they had an interested audience in a few minutes.A new meaning for the initials
A. E. F. was given by two Senior high school students in a history examination conducted early this week by Miss Margaret Tinsley, American history teacher at the school. One of the questions asked by Miss Tinsley was, "What do the letters A. E. F. stand for?" and the answer given by two of the 103 students who took the examination was "After England Failed."Eldon Dice is developing into one of the best rookie outfield prospects on the roster of the Mansfield Braves baseball club.
And, in his mind, one of the principal reasons he's making good in his first year as an Ohio State league player rests in touching the bases every time he takes his position in the outfield and every time he comes in to the dugout. When he trots in he always touches second and when he leaves the dugout he never fails to step on first base.

posed on charges of selling liquor

FALL IN TRAPBuccy, Can You Spare a Dime?
Gets Two in Trouble.PITTSBURGH — (AP) — A panhandler sidled up to two patrolmen in plain clothes and muttered
"kin ya spare a dime for a bite to eat."Arrested for violating a city ordinance, he was standing quietly, awaiting the arrival of the patrol wagon when another man approached and asked, "could ya spare a nickel for a cup of coffee?"

They both got 10 days in jail.

Freight Train.CONNELLSVILLE, Pa. — (AP) —
State police said investigators blamed a sun buckle in a rail for a Pittsburgh and West Virginia freight train wreck which killed one man and injured nine others last night near Banning, 12 miles to the northwest.Troopers reported nine cars loaded with steel, grain and other firemen at Belle Valley ran out pumping apparatus today for the first time since 1920 and succeeded stroyed a two-story building containing a barber shop, poolroom

COLLECTION TO OPEN JULY 1Richland county's tax collection for the last half of the year will get under way July 1 and taxes can be paid until Aug. 20 without penalty, County Treasurer John E.
Kolb said today.The county's tax bill for the period is $857,900, lowest half-year charge in recent years. The total bill includes $616,545 in current taxes and approximately $241,000 in delinquent taxes, covering unpaid levies over the past several years.On the basis of the first half year payments which amounted to more than $850,000, the county's tax receipts this year will pass the $1,100,000 mark, making it one of the best collection years in the past decade.The treasurer's staff was busy today preparing 20,000 tax statements for mailing within a few days. Under a recent state law, all property owners whose addresses are on file with the treasurer will receive statements.As the treasurer's force becomes more familiar with the work required to prepare and mail the thousands of statements, Kolb expects to get the collection periods back to the normal dates, June and December. He said the next collection will be considerably earlier than the final payment period last year.Although tax books will not be opened officially for three weeks, Kolb explained that property holders who plan to be away on vacation during most of the summer can pay their taxes now.Taxpayers who have not received their statements by the time they are ready to leave can find out how much they owe by calling at the treasurer's office, Kolb added.

SLATER CLAIMS VICTIM STRUCK
ONLY ONE TIMEStatement Given to Officials
Repudiated by Defendant
In Ohio Murder.(By United Press)
BELLEFONTAINE — Donald Slater, 18, returned to the witness stand today for cross-examination of his testimony that he struck Fred Jenkins, 51-year-old tele-grapher, "only once" with a hammer when Jenkins was killed apparently in his home at Huntsville, last Feb. 1.Slater, who will be 19 Sunday, testified as the first witness in his defense to a charge of first degree murder of Jenkins.In his testimony before a jury of 10 men and two women in the Logan county common pleas courtroom of Judge Lawrence Zupp, Slater repudiated a purported statement signed by himself that he struck Jenkins "four or five times."Then he walked to the jury box and displayed to the jurors an index finger with a scar which he said was made by Jenkins with a knife. Slater said he hit Jenkins first with his left hand and then with the hammer.Slater roomed at the Jenkins home when he was not working in a restaurant operated by Mrs. Jenkins, 47, widow of the slain man, also accused of the slaying along with her 15-year-old son Merlin.Slater denied on the witness stand that the hammer was hidden in a blanket. He said it was lying on a stove in the Jenkins living room.He also testified he thought he had transported Jenkins' body as far as Kentucky when he dumped it out of an automobile near Miamisburg, O. He said he was "surprised" to learn he had been only a few miles from Dayton.The guily where the body was discovered is about 80 miles from Huntsville.The defense opened its case yesterday afternoon after Judge Zupp rejected a demand for a directed verdict of acquittal upon completion of the prosecution's case.

QUOTA REDUCED

28 Richland WPA Workers to Lose Jobs Under Order.Richland county must reduce its WPA employment by 28 workers by July 1, leaving a quota of 285, J. L. Kelly, district WPA manager, said today.The lay-off, made necessary by a reduced federal relief appropriation, is not expected to cause serious concern in the county since a number of workers have been able to find other employment for the summer, it was said.It was estimated today that the county's WPA rolls have dwindled to about 400 workers, of whom 246 are employed on county road and bridge projects and about 60 on city sewer and water line jobs.Kelly said 3,800 workers will be dropped from the WPA lists in the Central Ohio district, reducing the quota to 13,000.BRIEF ILLNESS

BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Cross Section of a Chorus Girl.

On Broadway this season a chorine is a pretty girl, five feet five, 115 pounds, who comes from Ft. Worth, Texas, or Jamaica, L. I., and who wants either to become a star or settle down and get married. She is not brighter or dumber than the girl out in the audience, but she has more fun, and often she gets as much space in the newspapers as Mrs. Roosevelt.You can't type a chorus girl anymore than you can type a New Yorker. Usually she comes from the hinterlands and lives with a girl friend on a street off Central park west, or in the theatrical district, or in Jackson Heights.
But she is the frill on show business, and the material from which tomorrow's stars are made. She like Joan Crawford and Alice Faye and any number of other Hollywood queens, may get into the big time by way of the time step.Let's scrape the greasepaint off one chorine and put her under the microscope. This one's name is Virginia Cheneval, but almost everyone calls her Sister. She dances in "DuBarry Was a Lady," and she will be nineteen this month, and she is my favorite chorus girl, because when she opens her mouth to talk she utters some of the wisest, funniest, least understandable remarks ever voiced by man or babe.
Her friends call her naive.Virginia was born in Waco, Texas, and raised in Dallas, where she went to five different high schools before she found the one best suited to her temperament.
She says this was a wonderful experience, because now she knows practically every boy in Dallas.
She also claims she can remember staying up late, when she was a baby in Waco, to study for her kindergarten exams.Virginia lives with her sister and her mother. Her sister, Mildred, dances at the Diamond Horseshoe. When they're together Mildred is Big Sister, Virginia is Little Sister. They call their mother Buddy.Little Sister is not much concerned with important things.
She lives in a castle-in-the-air to which boy friends come and call almost every night in the week. She has heard there is a war in Europe, but she doesn't care; her closest knowledge of things military is several cadets at West Point.She loves to dance, especially to shag. She danced so much in high school she got gymnasium credit for it. She's also crazy about sports and dogs. But most of all she likes boys, and she has more fraternity pins than Cleopatra could have collected on the Nile.Once, when she lost a boy's fraternity emblem, and the romance was over, the boy sent her threatening letters. This columnThe little girl is invariably good humored and optimistic. Her only worry is where her next date is coming from. Like most chorines, she loves a flatterer, sometimes wears her stockings inside out and buys a lot of not very expensive clothes.Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—It's a strange new sight for Hollywood:
famous artists at their easels in studios within movie studios.Ever impressed by fame in other and related fields, the movies once were content with the "famous players" idea originally espoused by Adolph Zukor, who built a movie company (now Paramount) on that basis. Later Samuel Goldwyn, with nogreat success, inaugurated his "eminent authors" program only to learn the people who bought silent movies didn't care who wrote them as long as they were good and featured the equivalent of "famous players"—stars created by themselves. The really famous players of Zukor's day, as it turned out, were not those he imported from the stage but the hitherto unknowns developed on the then flickering screens of the nickelode-ons—Mary Pickford, Florence Lawrence, Charlie Chaplin.Today's artistic invasion will not affect the screen directly. Walter Wanger has enlisted the American art world—to paint for exploitation purposes the picturesque characters of "The Long Voyage Home."Their names: James Chapin, Georges Schiebler, George Biddle, Grant Wood, Thomas Benton, Robert Phillip, Luis Quintilla, Raphael Soyer, Ernest Finci.While these artists daubed with paint, the cameras on a Wanger set were recording scenes for "Foreign Correspondent," which in fury of wind and water were reminiscent of "Hurricane." A transport air liner, adrift on "waves" created by cascading tons of water from chutes over the studio
"tank," was being buffeted by the artificial fury.The "passengers" came behind the fuselage and wings, many of them to be swept overboard.
Even on the sidelines, sprayed and blown along with Joel McCrea, Larairie Day, Herbert Marshall and the rest, you could appreciate why "doubles" were being used for theMAN ALIVE HAS

PRIZE NOVEL ON LIBRARY'S NEW FICTION LIST

'Miss Monday' Deals With Life of Wisconsin Teacher; New Books on 'Circle' List.

New on the shelves at the Mansfield Public library this week is a prize winning novel "Miss Monday," about a Wisconsin high school teacher, written by Sophia Belzer Engstrand.

This book won the $1,000 award offered by the Dial Press for the best original story with a scholastic background.

Leading the list of non-fiction is a book by Oswald Garrison Villard, in which the author claims to furnish "the truth about defense." The library has added three more books of the 1940-41 Ohio Teachers' Reading Circle list, making the six books in this group available to borrowers at the library.

New Books of Fiction.

MISS MUNDAY by Sophia Belzer Engstrand received the $1,000 award offered by the Dial Press for the best original novel with a scholastic background. In which the chief character was a school teacher. The story of Helen Munday, a young, attractive teacher who came to River Port, Wisconsin to teach in the high school portrays not merely a single woman's life, but a dramatic picture of an entire profession. The author, who is now married and has a small daughter, writes with an insight gained through actual experience.

SPRING WILL COME AGAIN by Mrs. Florence Glass Palmer is a story of cotton growers in Alabama, beginning in 1880. William Day sold the gold buttons from his father's Confederate uniform in order to buy cotton lands in Alabama, where the land was good.

SIoux CITY by J. Hyatt Downing is the story of Anthony Trant, son of a Sioux City doctor. Returning from college in 1884, he was too hard-headed and ambitious for money to follow in his father's footsteps. In the novel Anthony and Sioux City grow up together.

Non-Fiction Books.

THE STORY OF MONA SHEEHY by Dunsany.

OUR MILITARY CHAOS by Oswald Garrison Villard furnishes us with "the truth about defense." He claims that we have no plan for defense, and that consequently there is a great waste of money and a sorry lack of efficiency in our military preparations. He points out that if Germany should win in Europe, she would be too spent with that undertaking to assume the burden of waging war across the Atlantic.

WITHOUT FEAR OR FAVOR by Neil MacNeil is an exposition of the modern American newspaper which declares that the American press is essentially free from bias and party dictates. Speaking of the future, he predicts close competition from television and families.

THE MEXICAN EARTH by Todd Downing combines history, biography, legend, and interesting anecdotes in a volume which reads more like a book of travel than of history. The author has a sympathetic grasp of the spirit of the country and the people.

The library has added three of the books on the Ohio Teachers' Reading Circle list so that now all six titles in the group for 1940-1941 are available. The three new books are:

ADMINISTERING THE TEACHING PERSONNEL by Dennis Hargrove Cooke.

THE AMERICAN TEACHER: EVOLUTION OF A PROFESSION IN A DEMOCRACY by Willard S. Elsbree.

THE ADVENTURES OF A HAPPY MAN by Channing Pollock.

The three other books listed are:

BEHOLD OUR LAND by Russell Lord.

READING AND THE EDUCATIVE PROCESS by Paul Witts and David Kopel.

PIONEERS OF PLENTY by Christy Borth.

Other New Books.

MODERN SCIENCE: A STUDY OF PHYSICAL SCIENCE IN THE WORLD TODAY by Levy.

VOCATIONAL MATHEMATICS (SHOP ARITHMETIC) by Schumacher.

MR. TOMPKINS IN WONDERLAND. Gamow.

THE ELEMENTS OF SHEET-METAL WORK Cookson and Bold.

FEEDING THE FAMILY Rose (4th edition).

SOILLESS CULTURE SIMPLIFIED Laune.

MODERN ART IN AMERICA. Cheney.

IN TRAMURAL SPORTS. Michell.

NORTHERN LIGHTS. Holdridge.

PLAN YOUR OWN HOME. Sooy and Woodbridge.

"HUMAN ENDEAVOR" THE STORY OF THE CHINA WAR by Hanson.

HEARING SET

Released on $500 bond, Harry W. Holmes 41 Greenwood avenue will face Judge G. E. Kallmish in municipal court June 29 on a charge of embezzlement.

The affidavit was signed by Harry Stiffler, manager of the H and M Bakery who accused Holmes of converting $33.06 of the firm's funds to his own use while employed as a salesman.

HIGH INTENSITY.

PORTERVILLE, Cal. TNS Frank Trostaker, male lead in the Junior College dramatic company, has demonstrated that dramatic emotion can be elevated to high intensity. While "emoting" in a play, he was called upon to beat his knees with his handkerchief.

which he did. It was only when blood was found coursing down his leg some time afterwards that he discovered he had gashed himself.

Two Governors and a Queen

Summoned to the throne of Mary Wellons Knowles, queen of the North Carolina strawberry festival, at Wallace, are Governor Clyde R. Hoey, (left) and J. M. Broughton, of Raleigh, Democratic nominee for governor. In North Carolina, nomination on the Democratic ticket is tantamount to election—or has been for the last 40 years.

HEARING SET

Released on $500 bond, Harry W. Holmes 41 Greenwood avenue will face Judge G. E. Kallmish in municipal court June 29 on a charge of embezzlement.

The affidavit was signed by Harry Stiffler, manager of the H and M Bakery who accused Holmes of converting $33.06 of the firm's funds to his own use while employed as a salesman.

HIGH INTENSITY.

PORTERVILLE, Cal. TNS Frank Trostaker, male lead in the Junior College dramatic company, has demonstrated that dramatic emotion can be elevated to high intensity. While "emoting" in a play, he was called upon to beat his knees with his handkerchief.

which he did. It was only when blood was found coursing down his leg some time afterwards that he discovered he had gashed himself.

$138 GAIN IN TAX RECEIPTS

Sales Revenue for Third Week in May Higher for County Than Year Ago.

Richland county sales tax receipts were up $138 for the third week of May over the corresponding week of last year, State Treasurer Don H. Ebright reported today.

Collections for the week totaled $11,625 as compared to $11,487 in the same week last year.

Receipts in the county to May 25 this year were $222,767, a gain of $30,500 over a similar period in 1939.

The state treasurer said collections for the entire state were $18,836,840 for the same period, representing an increase of 7.8 per cent over last year. State collections for the week ending May 25 showed a 13.8 per cent gain over the same week of 1939.

and See the Difference

IT FREEZES Without MOVING PARTS

Here is a different principle of refrigeration that offers more savings for more years. A tiny gas flame replaces all moving parts in the freezing system of a gas refrigerator. This assures lasting efficiency, continued low operating cost, permanent silence. See the 1940 Servel Electrolux gas refrigerator — now backed by a 10-year unconditional guarantee on its complete refrigerating system.

She'll Prefer the BALDWIN

There are so many reasons why women of culture, and refinement prefer the BALDWIN.

It's more than a piano—it becomes a part of your scheme of living, it's so intimate. The lasting quality of its unforgettable tone, the ease of its action, and the beautiful design are points of superiority.

Before you buy any piano, you owe it to yourself to see and hear the famous Baldwin, in Mansfield at JONES.

Baldwin pianos and others at JONES start in price at $245.00 and your old piano has a definite exchange value. Come in tomorrow and see the new and enlarged piano department at
